WINTER'S KIND TO CARNIVAL

From lumberjack competitions to dances and dinners, the Haliburton BIA Winter Carnival was an event for the whole community to enjoy. And hundreds of people did just that

Larry Hartin gets a few tips from Dean Prentice

PERFECT WINTER WEATHER gave the Haliburton BIA winter carnival a head start on success, and the community groups and individuals who organized and sponsored individual events did the rest. From Friday night's NHL Oldtimers hockey game to Sunday afternoon's international dart tournament and public skating, the carnival brought smiles to the faces of everyone who took part.

If there was any disappointing aspect of the carnival, it was that some of the events drew fewer participants than organizers hoped to attract. But the BIA organizing committee has vowed to build on this year's success, and stage a winter carnival in 1992 with an even fuller schedule of events.

NHL'ERS MEET THEIR MATCH

More than 300 people were in the stands at the Dysart arena on Friday night to watch some of Haliburton's best hockey players test their mettle against some familiar and even famous name players from the NHL. The outcome wasn't measured in goals but in fun, and there was plenty of that to go around. Former Toronto Maple Leaf defenseman Carl Brewer never stopped smiling as he cruised the ice sporting a long haired wig to keep his bald head warm. New York Ranger stalwart Dean Prentice delayed the action for a minute or two while he gave Haliburton

Drainville says one-week jail term is 'unfair'

by BRIAN RODNICK
Staff Reporter

Upset that he has been given a one-week jail sentence, Dennis Drainville says he is being unfairly singled out because of who he is.

"The judge made an example of me with a stiff sentence because I am an MPP," says Victoria/Haliburton's representative at Queen's Park. "However, I was not and elected representative when I took the stand and was arrested."

A Temagami judge sentenced Drainville to one week in jail and a $750 fine for his participation in a blockade of the Red Squirrel logging road in December 1989. Drainville said he took part because he's always fought for native rights and truly believes the land is owned by the Temagami Anishnabai tribe. At the time of the protest, he was not an elected official.

Last December, the MPP, who is also an Anglican priest, was found guilty of mischief. If he doesn't pay the fine — which Drainville has said he wouldn't —, the jail term increases to one month.

"I am somewhat dismayed by the harshness of my own punishment. After all, it was a peaceful protest to point out some problems in the way mainstream society is treating Native people and the environment. The judge is sending the message that Natives can protest [Chief Gary Potts was found not guilty of mischief for the same protest], but if any non-Native supports them, they are dealt with very harshly."

After he was sentenced Wednesday, Drainville was taken to the North Bay District Jail where he spent the day and was released on a $10,000 bond. An appeal of the conviction has been launched, but no date has been set. A jail term would not start until the appeal has been heard.

The MPP says he has received the support of his Caucus and Premier Bob Rae, who praised Drainville for standing up for his beliefs. Because of the type of charge, Drainville can continue to represent the riding.

Contractor sends council in circles

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Minden council went 'round in circles with developer Brad Bradamore and it's still not clear where they ended up.

Bradamore wants to build a three-storey commercial and residential building in front of his home on the Bobcaygeon Road. He was on Thursday's council agenda to talk about his site plan agreement, which has yet to be signed.

When he arrived, late, he didn't have his site plan with him. Instead, he said he wanted to "try to talk some common sense" into council about the "exorbitant" $51,000 letter of credit he must first provide.

New municipal guidelines say developers must provide some financial guarantee that the work as stated in the agreement will be carried out. Council also wants some insurance so that if it has to step in and rectify a situation, the developer provides the funds.

Before signing Bradamore's site plan agreement, council therefore wanted a $51,000 letter of credit. This will help cover potential costs of a paved parking lot, proper entrances and drainage if Bradamore doesn't provide them.

"Who can afford this?" Bradamore asked, adding he felt he was being unfairly singled out.

"You've forced me into abandoning the project until a new council is elected in the fall."

He's also considering litigation "but why should the taxpayers have to pay costs for the mistakes of a select few?"

After his speech, building inspector Tom Huberchek said a letter had been sent to Bradamore's lawyer on Tuesday saying that Bradamore needn't provide the letter of credit until the shovel was ready to go into the ground.

"We're definitely not holding you up," said Councillor Lewis Stevens. "What's the purpose of (your presentation) when we've gone overboard to make it easier for you?"

"Where have we tried to screw you or slow you down" asked Reeve Ray Moore. "This is your commitment to come to terms with our by-laws."

Bradamore said he hadn't seen the letter, adding that while it was good council was getting more strict with developers, council was going too far by asking for sums comparable to those in larger districts.

"Are you saying taxpayers have more money in Lindsay (to pay for jobs left undone by developers)?" Councillor Bob Sisson asked.

"We're protecting our taxpayers." Because Bradamore was late and another delegation was on the Contract could avert ambulance strike

by BRIAN RODNICK
Staff Reporter

A wage parity agreement reached Friday between 24 Ontario ambulance services and operators could avert a possible strike by Haliburton and Minden attendants.

"Things are beginning to look really positive," said ambulance spokesman Ian Douglas. "We're hopeful a similar agreement can be reached for us."

Under the new agreement 600 ambulance officers in the 24 services will be paid the same as counterparts who are employed by the provincial government. An officer with two years' service who used to earn $13.21 to $15.59 an

'Management has already acted very positively to the new agreement': Douglas hour, will now make $16.29 to $17.78.

Haliburton's attendants, along with Wasaga Beach's, were left out of Friday's negotiations because they are employees of a municipality.

Since a break down last summer in contract negotiations with Anson, Hindon and Minden, which administers the local service, have been in a legal strike position since fall. Any attempts by the attendants and management to come an agreement since then have been unsuccessful.

Haliburton attendants who earn $13.42 an hour want $16.80. Reeve Ray Moore has been quoted as saying although the province pays 100 per cent of the attendants' costs, he is worried other municipality employees will demand the same increase, which is unaffordable. But following Friday's announcement this attitude may have changed.

"Management has already acted very positively to the new agreement," said Douglas. "I'm hopeful something will work out that is applicable for both sides."

Talks between the two sides is set for March 5th and Douglas is confident a settlement will be reached.

"It will be a long two weeks waiting for March 5th. But I'm keeping my fingers crossed that things will go well."

Moore is on vacation and could not be reached for comment.

WEATHER WATCH

Warmer temps will melt snow

As everyone who took part in the winter carnival was aware, add a little wind to some blue skies, and you can have a very cold day.

The Haliburton Carnival started Friday, with temperatures reaching a high of 116 degrees Celsius. "The big killer was 40 mile an hour winds, which really made it feel cold," says local weather watcher Jim Elstone.

Saturday started bright and cold with a temperature of -29.5. It warmed up to -7 by two o'clock that afternoon, but the 15 mph winds kept the bite in the day, making it feel like -20. By Sunday, however, the low was -12.5 and the high was -6. The cold weekend weather topped a fresh layer of snow. On Valentine's Day and night, 10 cm fell, and Saturday night's snowfall added another five cm. The snow cover on Monday was around 45 cm.

However, this week's warmer-than-average temperatures might make some of that disappear. After Tuesday morning's freezing rain, temperatures will warm up and stay there through Sunday. There might be light precipitation in the form of snow.

Weather trivia: The coldest spot in the world last week was Agata in the USSR with -54; the hot spot was once again Leonora, Australia with 45. In Saudi Arabia, temperatures are moderate, with highs of 65 and lows of 45 (both Fahrenheit.) It's partly cloudy and the wind is beginning to blow the dust and sand around.

In February, 1956, Newfoundland experienced 143 hours of continuous snowfall: it snowed from the 13th to the 19th, dropping 44 cm.

On February 23, 1909, John McCurdy, who worked with Alexander Graham Bell, made the first successful flight in the British Empire. He flew his Silver Dart over Cape Breton.

MOE rules alter plans

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Chances are slim that a man who owns property next to the dump will be able to change the Ministry of Environment's rules about setbacks, Dysart council says.

Scott LaRue wants to develop 45 two-acre lots on land his family owns east of the Industrial Park. However, the ministry says there must be a buffer zone of 500 metres or 1400' between the property and the present landfill site. The municipality's setback, which was probably in place before the ministry's, is 365 metres or 1200'.

"If the municipality is interested in further development, then it will be necessary to acquire support from the council," says LaRue, who'd like the setback reduced to 200 metres. He says he spent $8,000 on hydrogeological studies which showed the water quality in the area has not been contaminated by the landfill.

As well, LaRue questioned how much longer the municipality planned to be using the dump. "I am very concerned that by dumping more refuse in the coming years, the value of the property will decrease. This devaluation will result if the landfill site is expanded too close to the sidelines and if the refuse is mounded too high above the natural contour of the original property."

Dysart is hoping to get the results of a study into the landfill's lifespan by the end of the month. However, even if it proves the landfill must be closed soon, council warned LaRue's problems might not be over.

"The setback is there for 25 years whether the landfill site is operating or not," said Councillor John Parish.

Council recently had to turn down a business proposal for land adjacent to the former Eagle Lake site because of the 25-year ban.

Unconditional grant increase is too low, say local reeves

by BRIAN RODNICK
Staff Reporter

A five per cent increase in unconditional grants from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs is too low, say many local reeves who feel a seven or eight per cent increase would have been more acceptable.

"It's good but it isn't enough," says Stanhope Reeve Harry Davis. "Eight per cent was the minimum generally asked for by the Association of Municipalities of Ontario."

A total of $948-million, which works out to $240 per household, will be paid out under the province's unconditional grants program. Each municipality can allocate the funding in accordance with its own priorities.

To alleviate some pressure off rate payers, municipalities often budget unconditional grants for areas such as roads, water and sewage.

But with increased operating costs and inflation, the grant money will have little effect. "We will just have to budget accordingly," says Davis. "We have no alternative."

"It has been decreasing the last few years," says Snowdon Reeve George Simmons. Like many Ontario municipalities, Snowdon has had its unconditional grants frozen two years ago and last year received a little under two per cent.

Simmons estimates costs have increased just over six per cent.

"I guess we will have to settle for what we got," says Glamorgan Reeve Robert McCausland.

"Everybody seems to need money, it's just the way the economy is." Monmouth Reeve Keith Tallman agrees. "Under the present economic conditions there isn't much we can do."

He says Monmouth's last two unconditional grants were about four and half per cent. "So maybe we are fortunate."

"As far as Lutterworth is concerned we're pleased with what we got," says Reeve Carol Puffer.

"The province has its hands full with government cutbacks and the recession. They're doing the best they can."

The MMA also announced municipal road grants will increase 5.5 per cent to $793-million.

"That is definitely not enough," says McCausland. "To really improve our deteriorating roads and get them back up there, municipalities and counties will need more."

agenda, the subject was dropped. Bradamore was told he could use the time to consult his lawyer about the latest letter, but Bradamore stayed in the council chambers.

"What do you want from us?" Moore asked when the debate resumed. Bradamore said $30,000 was far more reasonable for a letter of credit. "I'm putting you on notice," he said, "that this is a deliberate attempt to prevent me from doing what I want to do. I'm forced to deal with a new council now."

It appears the project is on hold until at least November.

OPP issues ice warning

Three unrelated accidents this past week have left three people injured, one seriously.

A 36-year-old Oshawa man was seriously injured Saturday when his snowmobile mounted an embankment on the North Road in Monmouth and rolled over. Robert DeGuerre was rushed to Haliburton Hospital and was later transferred to a Toronto hospital.

Also this weekend, Shirley Mackintyre of West Guilford received minor injuries when her car spun out of control on some ice and rolled over on Highway 121 just west of Haliburton.

Icy roads also caused a Hanover woman to lose control of her car last Monday and roll into a ditch.

Thirteen automobile accidents have occurred this week and as a result, the Minden OPP are advising motorists to use caution when driving, particularly in shaded areas where the melting snow freezes on the roads.

MVA could hurt middle income families, spurn development: cottager

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

Switching to market value assessment will hurt middle income families and perhaps force them to sell their cottages, Minden council was told Thursday.

"Middle income families who are struggling to find the money to provide recreational accommodation for their families are really going to be hit hard," said Fran Snelling of the Brady Lake property owners association. She said council needs to ask "what effects will (MVA) have on people ability to keep their properties."

Prices have gone up dramatically in the past few years and properties would be taxed based on values from a peak year, 1988. "If we were to buy now, we would not be able to buy (our cottage.)"

Development of the area might slow as a result, and Snelling urged council to take more time to study the impact of MVA. She also noted Premier Bob Rae feels not enough information is available on fair taxation.

Reeve Ray Moore said that when he was a Muskoka councillor, he fought against bringing in MVA there. Now he's for the idea. "There's an inequity of taxes out there," he said. "You're getting clobbered but your property, for example, might be worth $240,000. If you can get that amount of money for your property, isn't it fair (to be taxed for that amount)?"

About 60 percent of local tax dollars are swallowed up by the education levy, and Moore said he's behind the Federation of Ontario Cottagers' Association's bid to overhaul the tax system. FOCA prefers income to be used as a measure of ability to pay education taxes rather than property.

Snelling said that Muskoka cottagers are in a higher income bracket and may be more able to pay the increase of taxes which MVA will likely bring about on shoreline properties. "Do you want to make Haliburton County a rich man's area?"

Although it feels a change in taxation must be implemented, council voted to defer the possibility of adopting MVA for a year so its impact can be studied.

Monmouth, Snowdon and Sherborne et al councils have recently chosen the same option.

LOOKING AT THE HEART OF CHACE: Bob Bennett is one of the consultants hired by CHACE Place to do an on-site analysis, studying details of the past five years to help the centre plan for a more efficient future.

Sign by-law unfair: Dysart

The county's proposed sign by-law needs to be more fair to people who do not own businesses on county roads.

"I don't think it's fair that a business located on a county road can put a sign up and someone around the corner can't," said Deputy-reeve Lloyd Leadbeater Monday.

"I agree," said Reeve Bill Davis. "If you own a business off the county road, you're penalized."

Davis used the example of Councillor Brian Watts' trailer park, Rip's Sleepy Hollow. It is accessed first by Highway 118, where Watts can pay to place a sign on the road allowance, then by a county road, where there is limited space to place a sign, and then by the municipal road along Pine Lake.

Although allowed a fingerboard sign at the municipal and county roads intersection, it could just name the business. "You wouldn't know what I own," says Watts, who'd like to be able to put a larger sign on the county road.

"The intent of the by-law shouldn't be to restrict advertising," said Davis. Watts added, "You've got to advertise your business or what's the sense of being there?"

Muskoka's sign by-law is more lenient than Haliburton's, which puts restrictions on size and location of signs. Safety and visibility are cited as the main reasons behind the rules.

CHACE welcomes onsite analysis of its operations, staff

by MARTHA PERKINS
Editor

By the end of the week they'll be exhausted, but the staff and board members of CHACE feel the on-site analysis of their operations will be well worth it.

"We're really quite excited about it," says Administrator Sue Valm. "It helps us make sure we're meeting the needs of the community and our staff is operating efficiently."

"Our only guarantee is they will know more about their organization than if they spent a year prodding around by themselves," says private consultant Bob Bennett, one of the three team leaders of the week-long investigation of operations.

"It's usually the first opportunity that everyone has had to stop what they're doing and look at how their organization works on a factual basis," Bennett said before Sunday's reception at the Haliburton child resource centre. Staff has collected statistics from the past five years and interviews were conducted to determine perceptions of the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment, CHACE.

Bennett, who's hired by CHACE but paid by the Ministry of Community and Social Services, has done about 30 on-site analyses. Although there are no overall trends, he says the analysis enables organizations to be "much more innovative in the way they use these things they have right under their noses to work with."

For instance, everyone thinks you need a building to have a child resource centre. But five years ago, Peterborough sold its building because they were spending too much time fitting programs to the building, rather than community needs. As well, instead of finding church basements, they were spending a lot of their funding on maintaining the building. "There are usually more cost effective and more creative ways to provide a service."

Not only is the analysis an intensive look at operations, but it includes a cross section of service providers and users. "You've got 20 people a day looking at information with 20 different sets of eyes," says Bennett. "What I see may be different than what others see."

Working with Bennett are Verena Loewith and Sheryl Manolakas, who's the co-ordinator of informal programs at Muskoka Family Focus and a director with the Toy Library and Resources Centres of Canada.

The analysis is the brainchild of Bob Myers, former president of the United Way of Canada and now in charge of the Imagine campaign for the Canadian Centre for Philanthropy. It started as a look at the internal operations of the United Way and the effectiveness of its fundraising, and has since been used by private and public firms.

The group will present its report Friday at 2 p.m. Until then, both CHACE resource centres will be closed.

Abortion's personal

Abortion is too personal an issue to be voted on by municipalities, Stanhope council said Wednesday after being asked to support a motion against funding free standing abortion clinics.

The town of Tecumseh recently passed a motion opposing the provincial government's plan to fund the clinics in hopes to provide easier access for abortions.

Kids home for a day

by BRIAN RODNICK
Staff Reporter

School was open but only a handful of students showed up.

Haliburton County schools got their first "snow day" of the season yesterday after freezing rain Monday night iced over county roads.

At least 90 per cent of the county's students had the day off. "The weather was just too treacherous," said Jim Bradley, board administrator.

The schools kept their doors open for any students who could make it and in Minden, at least 30 out of 600 students showed up for classes at Archie Stouffer Elementary.

But despite the icy conditions, area tow trucks reported business as usual. "People just stayed home and didn't venture out," said Randy Barnum from Curry Motors in Haliburton. Like many local towing services, he said no calls came in yesterday morning from stranded motorists.

"There must be some good drivers out there," said another tow truck operator.

SKI RACE RESULTS

Conditions were absolutely perfect for the first ever Haliburton winter carnival cross country ski race, and some impressive times were turned in by the top competitors.

A total of 43 skiers lined up for the start down a main street track and then headed across Head Lake to join the Glebe Park trail system.

Top finisher was Blake Paton, who covered the eight kilometre course in 25:25.06, an average speed of about 18 kilometres an hour. He edged out Marcel Crete in a skate to the finish line.

The fastest female skier was Eva Griffith, finishing in 42:21.84.

Ryan Cummings took first place in the youth male division, skating across the finish line near the town dock in 31:22:00. Kelly Heyes was the fastest female youth, completing eight kilometres in 46:22:03.

Nine year old John McMahon was the youngest boy to ski the six kilometre course. Kim Varty and Cary Heyes, both eight, shared the honours as the youngest girls to complete the race.

The oldest man in the race was Teppo Lehtonen, who finished in 44:11:09. The oldest woman was Marg Brogden, who crossed the finish line in 48:10:32.

Paced by Blake Paton, Bruce Griffith, Eva Griffith and Kit Pizze, seven high school teachers won the $100 cash prize from the Bank of Montreal for the fastest group entry in the race. Their combined time was 132:18. The Bank of Commerce prize for the fastest family group went unclaimed, because no entries met the criteria.

Prizes for the individual categories were donated by McKeck's Place, Patrick Books, Paulettes and The Sport Stop.

SENIORS BONSPIEL WINNERS

A team of Minden curlers took top prize in the seniors bonspiel at the Haliburton Curling Club on Saturday. The high overall prize went to a rink skipped by Gill Scott, with Nancy Cook, Ebbie and Ruth Bishop.

Results from the first draw placed Nick Nimigon, Gloria Nimigon, Ralph Palmer and Gerry Palmer of Haliburton in first place; Dave McAdam, Syd Adamson, Lois Adamson and Billy Schuyler of Minden second; and Don Cameron, Joan Cameron, Jim Stacey and Mary Stacey of

POKER RUN WINNERS

Trail conditions were ideal for the Haliburton winter carnival snowmobile poker run on Saturday, and a Don Mills, Ontario snowmobiler is glad he decided to participate. Gary Plummer ended up with the winning hand of four threes and pocketed $150 for his outing.

Second place prize of Arctic Cat injector oil was won by Kevin Kerr of RR1 Stroud, who drew three queens.

Carolyn Kostiuik of Toronto had a pair of kings and pair of sixes, good enough for third place and a sweat shirt from Silver Eagle Resort.

Fourth was Jim Plummer of Don Mills, who won a gift certificate from Kennedy Sport and Tackle.

Sponsors of the Poker Run included Coneybeare Motors, Prentice Berry, Wig-a-Mog Inn, Shamrock Shell, Kennedy Sport and Tackle, Trucks Plus, and Silver Eagle Resort, along with Maryann Hodgins, Bob Porter and Larry Tupling.

Proceeds from the run will go to the Haliburton County Snowmobile Association for trail maintenance.

LEGION DART TOURNAMENT

With nerves of steel, the seven members of Haliburton's dart team "faced" off against their English rivals and for a second year in a row have come away the victors.

A hush fell over the Haliburton Legion Sunday afternoon as the call was placed through to the Red Lion pub in England. This is the ninth year the legion has played a transatlantic dart tournament with the English watering hole, and has now won three years to the Lion's six.

One after another the seven Haliburton players would take their position and fire off their darts with the utmost precision and accuracy, while their English counterparts sat close to their receiver listening to the cheers of the Haliburton crowd as each dart moved closer to the right mark.

The same courtesy was paid to the English team when it was their turn to shoot; the success of their aim measured by the roars of the Red Lion's patrons.

Following a brutal and sometimes tense 45 minute rally of dart tossing, the tournament ended with the Haliburton team walking away with five games to the Red Lion's two.

After the obligatory pats on the back and congratulations from the legion crowd, you can be sure these dart throwers are already sharpening their projectiles for next year's challenge.

LOG SAWING CONTEST

The wind may have been bitter, but the sawyers who gathered at the ball diamond were used to the outdoor conditions. The gloves came off as the competition heated up.

Steve Hutchings, Harry Hutchings, Eddie Heard, Ray Kettlewell, Bob Parker, Bert Main and Gary Cowen all took part in the first event: gauging where their "tree" would fall. Sizing up their upturned log, they placed a spike where they thought it would fall. The winner was whose tree landed closest to the spike. The top three were Eddie Heard, two inches, Steve Hutchings, 12.5 inches, and Harry Hutchings, 14 inches.

In the next competition, a stopwatch was used to time how quickly they could saw two "cookies" off a log. It was an open class for chainsaws. Eddie Heard came in first with eight seconds, Bert Main followed with 20 seconds and Steve Hutchings was a close third with 21 seconds.

With the crosscut saw competition, things really heated up. Results were: Bert Main and Gary Cowen, 25 seconds; Gary Cowen and Bob Parker, 40 seconds; Carol and Ray Kettlewell, 48 seconds; and brothers Harry and Steve Hutchings, 53 seconds. Not accustomed to the sawyer's life, Bob Nichol and Roger Scheffee teamed up for an 88.5 second finish.

Although prizes weren't awarded this year, organizers are hoping to add incentives to next year's event. As well, a team of horses might be brought in for a skidding display.

CHILI DINNER

Delicious and profitable at the same time; the CGIT chili dinner on Friday night was a success for both organizers and patrons.

After spending an afternoon chopping onions, opening cans of kidney beans and stirring it all together, the girls were rewarded by a good turnout at the arena. Although 200 were expected and approximately 115 were served, the meal will go a long way in helping the youth group through the year.

Part of the proceeds will be spent at an upcoming weekend at the Bark Lake Leadership Camp, part will cover costs over the year, and yet another portion will be donated to a local charity.

Serving their appreciative guests were Laura and Sharon Lancia, Andrea Black, Katrina Robinson, Bronwen Winsley, Melissa Forgrave, Brianne Hewitt, Carrie Baker and Sarah Levis.

Double talk

Dysart et al council is getting the run-around in its efforts to expand Haliburton's sewage treatment facility. The Ministry of the Environment has changed its mind so many times on a project that was first approved several years ago, that Dysart councillors are frustrated and confused.

In the latest twist, council must undertake yet another study of water quality in Lake Kashagawigamog to determine if the lake chain can safely handle the additional effluent that would be discharged from an expanded plant. A study completed last year, with terms of reference approved by the MOE, is not acceptable, minister Ruth Grier told council in a recent letter.

"Staff in our ministry are deeply concerned with water quality in the Kashagawigamog chain" Grier wrote. "Additional loading of this system through expanded sewage treatment works was not, in our opinion, satisfactorily assessed in your previous Environmental Study Report."

Council must now commission another study, await its completion, and then suffer in silence while the document makes its way through the MOE bureaucracy.

In the meantime, multiple unit commercial and residential development in Haliburton village is stalled. The present sewage plant is very near its design capacity, and the few additional hookups that were left have been assigned to the community housing senior citizens apartments on Eastern Avenue. There can be no new stores or offices, no new apartments, no opportunity for the local business community to grow and prosper, if the sewage plant expansion does not proceed.

The Ministry of the Environment is not alone in its concern about water quality in the Lake Kashagawigamog chain. One doesn't have to own property on the lake to recognize that halting or reversing the decline in water quality observed on the lake in the past decade, is important to the area's future as a cottaging and tourist destination.

The MOE must also recognize, however, that the causes for the decline go far beyond the Haliburton sewage treatment plant, if indeed it can be implicated at all in the water quality problems that Kashagawigamog cottagers are justifiably concerned about. The lake is over-developed by present standards. Many of the cottages are old, and built closer to the water than present regulations would permit. Many of them, too, have unobstructed views of the water over expanses of lawn more appropriate for suburbia than cottage country. It is now well known that cutting down trees and otherwise despoiling the natural landscape hastens lake decline, yet property owners continue to ignore that reality in favour of their own concept of taming nature. And where common sense fails, there are no regulations to protect property owners from their own short-sightedness.

Neither are there regulations that require cottage owners to provide adequate sewage handling facilities. There is little doubt that some, if not most lake water pollution, results from the activities and attitudes of individual property owners. That is as true of Kashagawigamog as it is of any other lake in cottage country.

Dysart council suspects the MOE is taking the narrow view of vocal cottagers in delaying the sewage plant expansion. Ironically, the MOE must also be aware that the present sewage plant is built to standards that are now outdated. An expanded plant would also be an upgraded plant. The effluent it discharged would be cleaner than the outflow from the present plant.

While more money is spent on studies, the lake chain will continue to be stressed by pollutants from many sources. The cost of upgrading the plant will rise. And the community's development will remain stagnant. No matter what the next study, or the one after that, may say, the inescapable conclusion is that the community must have better sewage treatment facilities. The sooner they are built the better for everyone with an interest in the community, even if they own a cottage on Kashagawigamog. Haliburton must grow and improve. It cannot do either as long as the MOE keeps stalling a vital project. L.P.

Computers can change system

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

OUR READERS WRITE...

To the Editor:

Re: January 30th, "Give Council An MVA Alternative"

In the above column Ray Moore asks, "I only ask one question: show me another fair way."

I suggest to all our political representatives that a "fair" way is already in existence. Our present assessments are subject to a "factor" system. The various plans and zoning laws in affect in the several townships of the county zone properties seasonal residential I or II, rural residential, rural, commercial, etc. Why not establish a "fair" factor for each of the zones and tax the property according to the assigned factor? In other words, an extension of the factor system already used. With the use of the computers we already have such a task would not be onerous, and, if the factors were fairly assigned, it would be immaterial what basis of assessment was adopted. Each property would pay a fair tax according to the factor assigned to it.

In this day of tight budgets, ever increasing expenses, demands for increased services, etc. we are continually warned that "the user must be prepared to pay". (The numerous license fees we pay reflect that philosophy.) The above suggestion adopts that policy, and just might eliminate the inequities that most of us would agree exist in the present system.

Yours sincerely, Art Wall

Reeve needs attendants

To the Editor:

I have been following with great interest the debate going on between our ambulance attendants and local government officials regarding pay equity with attendants in the rest of the province.

While reading the remarks made by both sides, I can only wonder what the reasoning is behind Reeve Ray Moore's thinking.

The Reeve of Anson, Hindon and Minden is trying to equate the work done by highly trained and skilled ambulance attendants with that done by all other municipal employees. Is this fair? We realize that all municipal employees play very important roles in the overall operations of our County but Mr. Moore must agree that should his life be on the line he would rather have the situation controlled by dedicated and professional people like our ambulance attendants.

Just this week in one of our local newspapers there is a "Thank You" message from a family. This message includes family members, doctors and ambulance attendants. How important the ambulance attendants must have been to be included with the family member! It does make one stop and think about the roles these men and women must have played.

Our ambulance attendants do not want any more than their rights as professionally trained people doing the jobs for which they have trained and dedicated years of their lives.

Are these men and women, who are ambulance attendants for our county not as well trained as their counterparts in the rest of the province?

Please Mr. Moore and negotiating members, be fair to these people who one day may be responsible for saving your life or mine.

Hard to be a neighbour

To the Editor:

Re: "Good Neighbours"

I enjoyed reading your article. I guess in this day and age it's hard to define exactly what being a good neighbour is all about. Basically, the Bible defined it perfectly as you say, but today it's difficult to actually put that very fine statement into practice. Why? Well, I think it's mainly because most of us fear stepping forward and simply saying to someone in need — "Can I help you in any way?" I have recently moved here from Toronto where I resided in a very ethnic community. Within that community, a great many didn't speak English and therefore depended on their families to assist them. I tried sometimes successfully and sometimes not to help when I could even if it was just to shovel snow, go to the corner store or loan tools. It was difficult though, because people didn't socialize there unless you went to the community halls which in our neighbourhood were a considerable distance away. If you did manage to go, you instantly got the look at the door that implied you didn't belong to this

THANKS ONCE AGAIN to the Haliburton B.I.A. for giving us the first Winter Carnival since 1987. It was far from perfect but it's a good start and the organizers can take it from here when February rolls around once again. No one seems to have come up with the answer to why attendance was down at most of the events. Some think that the recession was to blame while others say the below zero temperatures kept people at home, while others wonder if people are still interested in having a winter carnival. For the next few weeks local observers will be telling us just how the carnival should be run and what events are missing. Let's make sure that all these suggestions are handed in to the B.I.A. for further consideration. It's very easy for all of us to criticize those who are trying to do something, but it's another thing to jump in ourselves and give the committee a helping hand.

I have just been informed that Rev. Phillips of St. George's Anglican Church in Haliburton has rallied his youth group together in an effort to get pledges while skiing at Sir Sam's Ski Area. The proceeds will go to the Heart and Stroke Foundation. Free lift tickets will be available to all young people who will be participating in this fund raiser. The date has been set for this Saturday, February 23 and you are asked to meet at the Chalet at 10:00 a.m.

According to an article in the Toronto Star, New York Rangers forward Bernie Nicholls was suspended for three games for swinging his stick at Montreal Canadiens defenceman Jean-Jacques Daigneault during a game last weekend. The suspension was announced by the NHL two days after Nicholls attended a hearing in Montreal on the matter. Nicholls hit Daigneault on the bare hand with his stick after the Montreal player had dropped his gloves during an altercation Saturday. Daigneault had high sticked Randy Moller of the Rangers and then chased after Nicholls. "In considering the incident, it is acknowledged that Nicholls swung his stick at Daigneault's hand in order to restrain him from attacking him," NHL vice-president Brian O'Neill said. "In addition, the stick deflected up and struck Daigneault in the neck area on the helmet. Even though Nicholls was trying to defend himself, he swung his stick at an opponent who had dropped his gloves and stick at the time. The blow to the hand was intentional and could have resulted in serious injury." Nicholls who was given a high sticking major and game misconduct, said after the game he wanted to protect himself because he was coming off a shoulder injury. Many local fans from Haliburton, West Guilford and surrounding area will have the opportunity to see bernie in action when he comes to Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto with the New York Rangers on Saturday, evening March 2.

This is the time of the year when many people are making plans for the annual March Break which begins in the not too distant future.

Don't let them tell you that it takes a man to bring in the big fish. One day recently Cindy Boughner of Haliburton was fishing at Colborne Lake when she landed a 7-1/2 lb. splake. We understand that this was the largest splake ever caught in Haliburton County.

Time is fast approaching for the date of the annual Jack Robertson Memorial Bonspiel which will be held at the Haliburton Curling Club on Wednesday, March 6th, 1991. The spiel is held each year at this time in honour of the late Jack Robertson who was an ardent curler and former president of the Haliburton Curling Club. The bonspiel, which is open to all service clubs, will have 3 draws at 8:30 a.m., 10:00 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. The entry fee is $100. per rink and dinner included. It's sponsored by the Rotary Club of Haliburton.

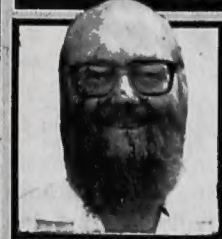

June Devolin of Haliburton will be the guest speaker when the Women's Aglow Fellowship meets at the J. Douglas Hodgson Elementary School this coming Monday evening, February 25 from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Here, there and everywhere . . . Club 707 Winter Fun Night is all set for this Friday evening, February 22 at Camp Medeba, West Guilford . . . POINTS OF VIEW

Still a small world out there

ON THE ROAD: It's hard for me to believe, but it has been over a month since we brought you up-to-date on our winter wanderings. According to my notes, we were in Yuma, Arizona when I wrote the column that was in The Echo on January 16th.

This particular item is being written under rather unusual circumstances. We are in a tiny town called Lajitas on the Rio Grande, which is just west of Big Bend National Park on the Mexican border, where we've settled for the last ten days.

We came here eight years ago rough-camping out of the back of our pickup truck, and were as surprised as anyone to discover that Texas has mountains. Big ones. They are surrounded by desert and, of course, abutted the river with its many canyons, which has made river rafting a big industry here.

This trip, in addition to seeing other areas of the park, we were also able to take the exciting 50-mile El Camino Del Rio highway along beside the Rio Grande to the town of Presidio, and tour a new museum here that features this area's past.

But to get back to the unusual circumstances, we are here one more day than we planned because we woke up this morning, all set to move along after a ten-day visit — and found ourselves in two inches of snow! First time in six years, they say, third time in ten. (I can hear everyone saying awww...)

With narrow roads that feature 'dips' where water comes through whenever they have any, plus a number of minor mountain passes between here and the outside world, we decided to make a fresh, early start tomorrow instead, allowing me some extra time to write this.

We went from November 13th to January 5th — nearly eight weeks — without a drop of rain, so we really can't complain. On the other hand, it has been almost consistently cool — something to do with the jet stream according to the TV weatherman.

Since Yuma, we've spent a week camping in an Arizona State Park on the side of Pecacho Peak, which is just off the main route from Phoenix, about 40 miles north of Tucson. There I climbed to the peak's 2700-foot level — with an English artist who also wanted to have a go at The Peak, but whose wife didn't want to join him either.

From there we revisited the Arizona-Sonora Desert Museum, which is really more like a zoo of area animals, reptiles, birds, and plants in natural settings. We wanted to enjoy seeing the otters playing from above and below the water, and spend time in the aviary, surrounded by hummingbirds once again.

Then it was off to and through New Mexico into Texas at El Paso, then back in again through the Guadalupe Mountains to the Carlsbad Caverns where we spent a fascinating four hours under the ground. We walked down the equivalent of 84 stories to visit an enormous underground room full of stalagmites and stalactites, and now I know how to tell one from the other.

It was from the Carlsbad region that we headed for the Big Bend area, and we stopped about halfway at an RV park near Interstate 10, at a small West Texas town called Fort Stockton. About the only thing to distinguish it from any of the other spots along the route is a giant roadrunner statue at one of the main intersections.

I was a little bit off the beaten path when I found the park itself, so I was a little more than startled after I had registered at the office when the owner came in and asked if I was from London, Ontario!

Looking at him very carefully, I explained that I had been born and raised there, moved away and returned in my 20s for a number of years — but why was he asking?

Turns out he had two campers in the park on their way to Mexico from London, and was expecting a couple more. When he saw my licence plate, he leapt to the conclusion that I was one of the later arrivals that had lagged behind.

Because he located us on a lot near the Londoners, I stopped over briefly after dinner, and wasn't too surprised under the circumstances to find that I knew none of the four members of the two couples. However, they wanted to know what years I had lived in London and what I'd done when I lived there, and before long we'd found some links.

Based on where we had lived, we found that one couple's daughters had gone to public school with my oldest son. And when I mentioned working at CFPL, we discovered that the wife of the other pair was the best friend of a longtime employee I had seen just before we left for our trip.

Like the song says, "It's a small world, after all."

Trapping a good romance

DOWN OUR ROAD

SHARON LYNCH

Due to an error in laying out last week's Down Our Road, the paragraphs got mixed up. This is a repeat of last week's column in the proper order. The Echo regrets any confusion this may have caused.

KATE AND RICK HAD invited Don over for supper and as usual it was behind schedule. Not that Don minded. He was up by himself, doing some inside work on his cottage and a change from wieners and beans was not hard to take, to say nothing of the company. While his hosts bustled around the kitchen, moving between the frig, stove and counter, Don sat at the table, beer in hand and kept the conversation flowing. He was feeling relaxed as only a week by the lake can relax.

They had been discussing interesting people they had come to know over the years. While Kate and Rick chopped, mixed and sliced, they'd throw out the odd anecdote. But mostly they listened to Don. He was a great story teller and because he had grown up in a different part of the country, his stories had a different flavour to them. Don always said you could read all the tales ever written but the most interesting were the true stories that happened to ordinary people.

The one about the trapper and the school teacher was a perfect example. When Rick and Kate heard it, they wished they had a tape-recorder to get it just as Don told them. They repeated it often to others but never felt they captured the tone that ran through Don's voice. As he spoke they could picture it all unfold, for Don was that kind of a story teller. It was also that kind of a story.

Back in the old days when trapping was a big thing in Canada, Montreal was where the big fur auction took place every year. There were other auctions in other cities, but Montreal was the big one.

It must have been quite the sight in that sophisticated city when the trappers came to town. As a group they were not known for their city ways and manners. In fact they were probably a pretty rough bunch, at least to look at.

There was one particular trapper, a man in his 60's. Whether he was closer to 60, 65 or 69 isn't clear. But he was not a young man. Somehow or other he managed to meet a school teacher down there in Montreal one year. She was no spring chicken herself, being in her 50's. How they ever found each other, coming from such different backgrounds, is a mystery and would probably make a great story in itself. One can only speculate, as Don said. Did their eyes meet across a crowded room, say a restaurant? Did she attend the auction with a friend and they met there? Did she drop a glove on the street, he stooped to pick it up for her and a conversation followed? Whatever happened, it must have been magic because of what eventually transpired.

She resigned her teaching position, packed up her worldly possessions and left with him as his bride. At 50 some years she walked away from her life to start a new and very different one. She brought her Waterford crystal to go live in a trapper's cabin on the shores of James Bay.

It had to have been a shock for her to see that cabin stuck out in the middle of nowhere. The isolation after the crowded streets and shops of Montreal must have been an adjustment. Besides her husband, her only other companion would have been the wind blowing long and cold through the trees, bringing storms and blizzards off James Bay.

On the other hand maybe she became his partner on the line. Any woman who, in those times, would uproot herself at her age to live in a trapper's cabin, would be just the kind to throw herself into the lifestyle completely. She'd have to or go mad. No doubt there were days when they'd have to dig themselves out after a heavy snowfall. And other times they would just about go stir crazy trapped in the little cabin by the weather. What did they talk about on those long winter days and nights? They had each lived almost an entire lifetime before meeting. Past loves, loneliness, distant families; did they talk of these? Did he become the teacher, sharing his knowledge of the bush and its ways: animal habits, how to tan hides, how to read a change in the weather? Did she ever use her Waterford crystal?

As he spoke, Don painted various possible scenes and more than once both Kate and Rick found themselves standing with hand in mid-air, transfixed by his images. He loved to throw out possible twists to the tale. Suppose, he suggested, just suppose the trapper had not started out as a trapper. Maybe he had been a businessman or even a tea her who had become fed up with civilized society and decided to turn his back on all of it and reduce his life to simple, basic terms and values. Did he crave solitude for a troubled spirit? Had he run away from a tragic love affair? Don's eyes sparkled as he dangled these unanswered questions before his listeners.

All speculation aside, for no one will ever know the full story, the fact remained that they stayed together and so must have been happy. Every year they'd go to the fur auctions and got to be quite the topic of conversation. Someone who had known the woman back when she was a school teacher saw them one day. It was in Toronto. The two of them were walking down the street, side by side, covered from neck to ankle in the thickest, most perfect beaver fur coat she had ever seen. She was heard to say later that they looked like two fur-covered peas in a pod.

His story completed, Don asked if he could help with dinner but his hosts had it well in hand, despite Don's distractions. As Kate finished setting the table, she turned to Rick and wondered aloud what it would be like to live in a trapper's cabin, just the two of them. Rick couldn't imagine such a basic existence but saw the appeal of being so close to nature. Don thought it was a terrible thought and threatened both of them that if they ever decided to do it, they could forget about him coming over for dinner. And then who'd tell them stories?

crowd. It's like in some fairly large offices where cliques get started and rarely do newcomers get allowed into the circle.

Here in smaller communities, I feel it's a lot easier to practice being a good neighbour. There is more time, the pace is not so fast and someone always has something to offer another. These last four words mean a lot because that's what being a neighbour is all about I think. We all have a lot to offer simply because we are so diverse. Sometimes all it takes is just a smile as you pass a person on the street or just saying 'What a lovely day' 'Glad to see you're out enjoying the good weather'. On the physical side, I think that when you happen to see someone in need, no matter what kind, you should offer; if necessary just go ahead and do some little deed. I try to take magazines and pocket novels to a little old lady. This of course is just one example of helping others.

I also think that being a good neighbour means that you never think or worry about what you're going to get out of your deed; just the fact that you care and the other person is pleased should be more than sufficient.

We shouldn't have to depend on government officials to tell us how to live our lives. Unfortunately, this is what is happening all over. Special values of yesterday have been taken out of the home and are being interpreted in different ways than what we were taught and then our children are being told to put these new questionable values into place. WHY? Simply because, I think, costs for good homes and other necessities have risen so high it requires both parents to be working. Who suffers? The children to a great degree because parents have a very difficult time finding TIME to talk, discuss with their children the really important things in life: VALUES. Most parents, because of their work, aren't able to say to their children "Do something nice for someone else and by doing so you'll feel better yourself." Kids don't think there's time for the little things in life because they're too busy rushing around or pushing buttons or joy-sticks.

MNR and OMB like control

To the Editor:

I would like to address some issues from the Echo Feb. 6: "OMB won't allow new lots on 2 local lakes."

I agree with Al Stewart that "These rulings ... are important milestones in our efforts to manage developments". But for very different reasons. It appears as if Mr. Stewart is pleased that he has been given the authority to stop potential harm from coming to the lake trout in our area. First reaction would naturally be that this is a good thing. Our lake trout can now swim happier because big brother is watching out for them and nasty human beings will be controlled for the good of all. Stalin and Hitler would be pleased.

Closer observation would show that the MNR has worked out that the number of building lots is exactly the allowable number by them. WOW! Some of the MNR statistics have not changed from 1956. How about phosphate free detergent? What about the fact that most outhouses have been replaced by holding tanks or chemical toilets? In these changing times one branch of the government cries about acid rain while the other cries about too much algae.

Does this mean that five years from now the acid rain will have caused a PH imbalance and the MNR will ask for money to put nutrients into the lake to save the lake trout, or in your wildest dreams me the big bad capitalist will have to pay to build where the MNR says so that additional nutrients enter the lake.

I believe the truth is that the MNR and OMB gang wish to control us anywhere they can.

I have no reason to believe the lake trout are in any danger. The MNR fishing guide does not show any trout in Bob Lake and Hudson Lake does not exist in the 1989 or 1990 Guide.

Al Stewart says "Conservation is the mandate of our ministry." I don't believe him there either. His actions prove control is his mandate and any excuse will do! Living free is my mandate without causing any victims.

Haliburton County is known for its strongly independent people who help each other out in time of need and respect their fellow man including his right to live his life the way he sees fit. I hope my fellow Haliburton County lovers help me stop this government from pushing us around while we still can.

Decisions questioned

To the Editor:

The decisions and responses of the elected Council of Cardiff Township, in my opinion, leave much to be desired.

The Fire Department was budgeted to cost, in 1989 and 1990, a total cost of $80,330. However, based on the Auditor's Report and Reeve Maurice Bradley's own admission, the actual cost will be approximately $330,000, which does not include the purchase and lease of the rescue vehicle to be paid for in 1991. This cost of $45,000 will be included in the 1991 budget. I understand the budget proposal for operating and capital being submitted is $95,000. It seems like a very expensive undertaking considering that in the past our fire protection was supplied by the Townships of Bicroft and Monmouth at an annual cost of $16,000. In addition, we still maintain a protection agreement with the Township of Monmouth for 1991, but you must remember, Reeve Bradley lives in Monmouth Township.

Another curious scenario regarding the establishment of the Fire Department is the application to the Ontario Municipal Board for approval to debenture over 10 years for the "formulation of a Fire Department", and the timing of the actual spending.

The OMB Act is quite specific. Section 64 stipulates that Board approval is required BEFORE Council "undertakes" a project, matter or scheme, etc. that will be financed past the end of its current term (in this case November 30, 1991). I made enquiries to the OMB at the time of the application in November of 1989 and again just recently I questioned why the Board had given approval to finance a project that was "undertaken" before the Board

PORK CHOPS AND APPLE SAUCE. When I was kid I used to love eating pork chops and apple sauce. It was the only main course where the dessert was included and I would not hesitate to slurp back as much of that apple sauce as I could. However, not a good idea just before a hockey game. No, I would have to say that the "food for sport" is definitely pasta. Look at Mario Andretti. What, do you think he had a Big Mac and fries before all those races? No sir! And what about that time that Gretzky scored seven goals in one game? I am sure I saw spaghetti sauce on his face that night! Oh, there is no question — pasta is the breakfast of champions!

Get the golf clubs out again. Bishop and Wilson "forfeited" another one. Geez eh. Like where was everyone eh? This time the winners by default were Emmerson Lumber.

Haliburton Lumber and Youngdale Fuels squared off in game two. This one looked like it was going to be a nailbiter, but Youngdales came up with a flurry of goals in the third giving them the edge. Final count was 7-5 for the oilmen. Winning goals came from Gary Burtch, Ken Barry, Glen Scully, Tim Chambers and Mike Rae. On the opposing side Norm Barry, Ron Yake and GREG CARPENTER were the only three to net the puck. The lumbermen are now "mathematically" out of the running, but Youngdales' still cling to a faint hope with a record of 3-1-1.

Curry Motors are definitely not suffering from any "turnout troubles." They iced a full squad on Sunday against Elstone Motors. The word must be out that Elstone's is not a team to be taken lightly! The first two periods seemed to indicate just that. However, the motormen turned things on in the third, building a lead which they would not give up. Six to four was the final. The win puts Currys in second place with a record of 4-1. Helping the team tonight were Andy Salvatori, Ron Perrin, Al Finini, Ken Riley, Hardy Kraft and Wilcox Jenkins. Elstone's goals came from Steve Wilcox with two, Scott Rae and Greg Bishop with one each.

The nightcap was a crucial game for both teams. Roberts-Austin Fuels needed a win to keep their playoff dreams alive. Vasey Insurance needed a win to maintain their grip on first place. The first two periods were close, but in the third, Kevin Phillips and Dan Ambridge staged a goal-a-thon to give Vasey's a 9-4 win. Bernie Upton, Tom Ballantyne and Carl Rowbotham also scored for the brokers. Chuck Clarkson's pair as well as singles from Bob Woodcock and Erin Nicholls accounted for Roberts-Austin's four. The loss kills R-A's dreams. The win tightens Vasey's grip. The brokers remain undefeated!

I'm Chip and that was . . . THIS WEEK IN THE M.H.L.

Major and Minor Tykes' fans craving for more

Haliburton's Major and Minor Tyke teams hosted a one day tournament on Saturday, and put on an impressive performance for their local fans.

The Major Tykes met Minden to start the tournament, and skated away with an 8-3 win. Scoring for Haliburton were Warren Cooper and Jeff Wilson with two each and Andrew Sachs, Joel Cooper, Jeremy Mieske, Chris Petrow with singles. Chris Petrow and Jeremy Mieske also received assists on goals. Solid goaltending by Travis Bain helped Haliburton with the victory.

In the second Major game, Haliburton met Bobcaygeon. This game was not decided until the final second. Jeff Wilson scored a pair of goals, including the final second winner, and added one assist. Scoring singles were Warren Cooper, Darren Kirkpatrick and Chris Petrow. Assists came from Chris Petrow, Matthew Gerry, Darren Kirkpatrick with one a piece, and Warren Cooper getting two.

The local Majors then met Bancroft in the Championship finals. The team from Bancroft were playing with four seven year olds due to the fact that tykes in the Bancroft league range in age 4 to 7, not like the local league where the ages are 4 to 6. Needless to say, this was a one-sided game with Bancroft winning 15-1. Jeff Wilson was the only player able to put the puck past the Bancroft goaltender. Darren Kirkpatrick got the only assist.

Game stars for the three games for the Majors were Chris Petrow, Jeff Wilson, and Travis Bain.

Minors Win

The Haliburton Minor Tykes played their first game against Minden. The two teams traded first period goals. Then Haliburton put the game out of reach with six goals in the next two periods. Final score was 7-1. Scoring for Haliburton were Cory Sisson and Jeff Packard with two a piece. Chris Bishop, Matthew Marlin and Ryan Goldenberg each had singles. Assists went to Matthew Marlin with two and Cory Sisson with one.

Haliburton played their second game against Wilberforce, who have the same age groups as the Major team from Bancroft, 4 to 7 years old. The game was a close one with Wilberforce managing to get a goal in each of the three periods to win 3-0.

Haliburton played Minden again to see who was to play in the Championship finals against Wilberforce. Haliburton lost one of their players due to injury, Jamie Sala. Even with the loss of a key player, they were able to come out on top with a 6-0 win. Scoring for Haliburton were Cory Sisson and Matthew Marlin with two goals each. Chris Bishop and Jeff Packard added singles. Assisting on the scoring were Matthew Marlin and Jeff Packard with 3 assists, and Dustin Prindiville with two, and Chris Bishop, Ryan Goldenberg and Cory Sisson with one each. Jason Chambers received the shut out.

In the Championship game, it was Haliburton playing Wilberforce. Due to the injury of Jamie Sala, Haliburton picked up Ryan Wood to give them eight players, but after playing only six minutes of the game, the Wilberforce coach felt that Ryan would make too much of a difference, so Haliburton had to take him out of the game and play with only one spare. Haliburton opened the scoring with a goal by Chris Bishop, assisted by Ryan Wood. With just under four minutes left in the second period, Wilberforce tied it up with a goal scored by Justin Winder. The game ended 1-1. This prompted a five minute sudden death overtime which resulted in no scoring.

The teams then went on to a three man shoot out. Justin Winder had the first shot for Wilberforce and made it count by putting it in the net. Then it was Chris Bishop for Haliburton who tied up the shoot out with a well thought out goal. Jason Chambers then stopped the second shooter for Wilberforce. Matthew Marlin was then called upon to try and put Haliburton ahead of the shooting, which he did. It was then up to Jason Chambers to try his luck with stopping the next shooter. The parents in the stands had their nails chewed down to the quicks. Jason did just as the team required, he stopped the next shooter, leaving Haliburton with the Championship title.

While Cory Sisson, Chris Bishop, Matthew Marlin and Jason Chambers earned the game stars, the entire team played like stars.

Special thanks go to The Butcher Block, Jasco Pharmacy and Valu-Mart for donations to the tournament and also to the parents for assisting throughout the day.

On Sunday, February 17, 1991, Haliburton Minor Tykes played the Minden Minor Tykes in Minden. Haliburton decided to help even the teams out by putting one of their top forwards in net and putting the regular goaltender on the forward line. The game was a close one with Haliburton scoring the only goal. Jeff Packard was the only player able to put the puck in the net with the help of Dustin Prindiville who got the assist. Matthew Marlin earned his first shut out in his first game in net.

PeeWees take series lead with weekend win

The Keith Jackson Real Estate PeeWees managed a win and a tie in Deseronto on the weekend to take a 3-1 lead in the six-point series.

Derek Glendinning led off the scoring with assists going to Jackie Morrison and Tim Keefer while Deseronto was serving a penalty. Mike Hartwick put Haliburton ahead 2-0 when he fired a hard shot past David Chant in the Deseronto net. Assists went to Jackie Morrison and Curtis Reynolds. (His second game winner in as many games.) Ben Green made it close for Deseronto and Mark Coffey made it 4-3. Haliburton seemed to be on the ropes as the second period ended but they came out strong in the third. Derek Glendinning scored from Curtis Bain and Mike Hartwick. Tim Keefer tallied from Derek Glendinning and Keefer responded again from Glendinning and Jon Hebert. The final score was Haliburton 7, Deseronto 3.

Game 2 was a whole new scene. Deseronto played a hard checking game and refused to give Haliburton any open ice while playing one man as a floater looking for a fast break. The strategy worked as Deseronto managed three breakaways and Haliburton took two penalties preventing two more. The game remained scoreless until 5:03 of the second period when Brian Brant struck pay dirt for Deseronto. Tim Keefer tied the score for Haliburton with assists going to Curtis Bain and Derek Glendinning.

Deseronto went ahead on a goal by Jessie Winsborough only to have Jackie Morrison tie it up from Jimmy O'Neil and Curtis Reynolds. Morrison connected again with a hard shot from the left wing after being set up by Derek Glendinning and Time Keefer only to have Brian Brant even the score for Deseronto. Morrison appeared to have scored the winner for Haliburton on a wrap-around but the goal was officially credited to Glendinning who was jamming the front of the net. With just over one minute left to play Edmond Dowling tapped in a puck from the crease as he was left uncovered in front of the Haliburton net. Brock Glendinning was inundated with shots on the Haliburton net in the overtime but he held out until the final buzzer. The game ended 4-4.

Deseronto returns to Haliburton on Saturday at 7 p.m. and on Sunday at 1 p.m. If a fifth game is necessary, it will be on Tuesday at 8 p.m. in Deseronto.

Novices hang tough in games against Beaverton

In a rare Saturday evening game the Haliburton OMHA Novice squad hooked up with a tough Beaverton club for the second game in their two-out-of-three playoff series.

After dropping the first game of the abbreviated playoff series — in their own backyard — the Beaverton club came to Haliburton looking to desperately stave off elimination and possibly avenge the earlier loss at home. However, the Huskies, knowing the opposition would be fired up — as is the norm when the realization of hockey coming to an abrupt end looms in the foreground — seemed quite prepared to shatter any intentions of seeing this series go to a deciding third game.

Unfortunately for the local boys, the opposition played very abrasively and for most of the game were allowed to do so, keeping the Huskie players frustrated and off balance.

Beaverton climbed on top in the first period, scoring midway through and shut down the powerful Huskie offence, as the period ended one to nothing.

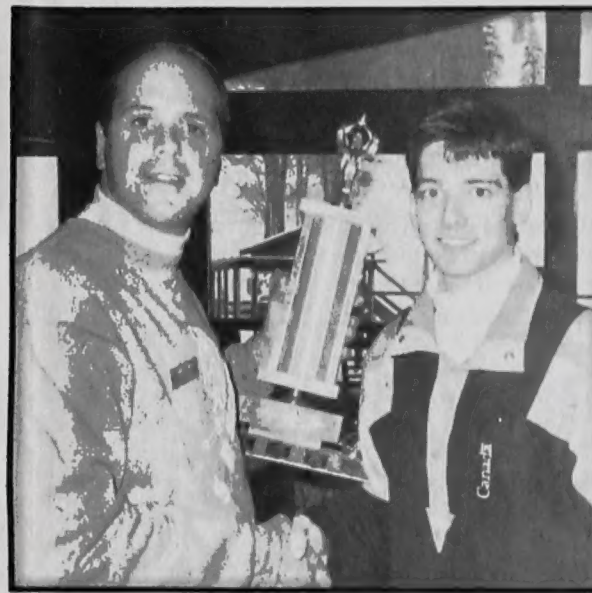

The visitors added to their lead in the second period as the strength of the Beaverton club, Michael Hanna, notched his second goal of the game splitting the Huskie defence and firing the puck midway up in the net. The Huskie offence for the first time all season were shut out in two consecutive periods.

However, displaying the grit and team character this unit has developed since October 1, the Huskies stormed the Beaverton net with immediate dividends as Kenny Ablett on a feed from Greg Forgrave sparked his teammates to picking up their level of play. With a swing in momentum captain Michael Craigen squared the affair at two and the Huskies' fortunes looked much better. To the dismay of the local team and fans, Beaverton ace Mike Hanna notched his third goal and once again staked his team to a one-goal lead.

With time dwindling down the Huskie players continued to press with good work coming from the defensive corps keeping the play in Beaverton's end.

RACING FOR THE FINISH: Bruce Griffith and Ryan Cummings press hard toward the finish of the carnival's cross country ski race on Saturday. Ryan won the youth division, and earlier in the week, finished first in the Midget division of Kawartha Nordic Ski championship.

HHSS skiers grab tour medals

Haliburton high school skiers took four medals last Wednesday as HHSS hosted the Kawartha Nordic Ski championships.

Ten schools competed in Midget, junior and senior events in a bid to qualify for the OFSSA championship.

Haliburton's four medals were won in the Midget category. Ryan Cummings placed first, setting a new course record. Mike Ellis was second and Simon Reid, third. Lisa Ranson was first in the girls event and Andrew Pawluch finished fourth.

Personal best times were posted by team leaders Dave Watson and Richard Whiten in the senior boys event.

Coaches Bruce Griffith and Sharon Diblee say they are proud of their skiers accomplishments, and excited about the future for these young competitors.

Sir Sam's to host the first Ski for Heart this Saturday

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

While Sunday is usually a minister's day of glory, Rev. John Phillips wants to spread the word about this Saturday: Sir Sam's Ski Area is hosting the first Ski for Heart and the Anglican priest is determined to vindicate his former reputation as... well, to put it kindly, a non-athletic type.

His cassock won't be flying but his spirits will be soaring as he joins others in raising money for the Heart and Stroke Foundation.

Participants will get pledges for each of the 20 times they swoosh down the slopes on Saturday, February 23.

"If we did it per run, people would be rushing and hurting themselves," says Sir Sam's Chris Bishop, one of the organizers.

For the past few weeks, Rev. Phillips has been regaling his congregation with tales of how he's learning to get down the hills without his two children skiing away in embarrassment. Of course he turns these stories into parables, and this week, it will be the one about how it's better to give than to receive.

To help put this into practice, Rev. Phillips has left pledge sheets at various churches, including his own, St. George's in Haliburton. He's also coerced the Youth Group to participate and raise money for this event.

Participants can ski for free and are asked to be at the ski chalet by 10 a.m. for registration. Prizes will be awarded at 3:30 and lightning might strike if Rev. Phillips doesn't get his skiing reward here on earth.

WAITING FOR EARTHLY REWARD: Rev. John Phillips has spent enough hours practicing to feel confident about easily completing his 20 runs down Sir Sam's hills during this Saturday's fundraising Ski for Heart.

Deadlocked scores mark many Novice games; tourney awaits

Deadlocked scores have been the order of the day for the Haliburton Tri County Novice hockey club in their most recent outings.

The local team tied Little Britain 3-3 on two goals by Shane Campbell and a single from Ryan Kirkpatrick, assisted by Scott Curry. And against Fenelon last Tuesday, the game ended in a one-all tie. Scott Cury had the only goal, assisted by Jamie Doan. Adam Wilson was solid in goal for Haliburton, while the team dug skated hard in a bid to win. Taking shift for the local squad were Kyle Robinson, Andrew Brown, Shane Campbell, Logan Roberts, Adam Henry, Jennifer Cattell, Ryan Kirkpatrick and Grahm Schakelaar.

This Saturday Haliburton will host a tournament all day at the Dysart arena.

allowing the forward to sustain pressure. With two minutes remaining, Mike Morissette drove to the net, tapping in a rebound from Mike Craigen's goalmouth shot and bringing the game to a draw. As alluded to earlier, this team, not content to settle for a tie, continued to attack and with 66 seconds remaining notched the winner. Greg Forgrave slid the puck under the Beaverton goalie with assists going to Craigen and Ablett. Final score: Huskies 4, Beaverton 3.

The Huskies will now advance to the semi-finals against the winner of the Frankford/Gananoque series. As the local boys await the next series, they will host the Parry Sound OMHA Novice club this Sunday at 3:30 p.m. and look for continued fan support as their playoff hopes race.

Tenants - Landlords

We want your views on Rent Control

You can help the Ontario Government develop a new rent control law by letting us know your views.

Because both tenants and landlords want to settle the rent control issue without delay, we want to have a rent control law in place within a year.

To help us do that, we will meet with tenant and landlord associations, municipalities and other interested groups across the province.

But most important, we want to hear from you.

Here's how you can make your views known:

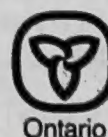

- 1 A newsletter summary of the main rent control issues will be delivered to most apartments during the next few days. It gives you a way to get back to the government with your views. If you don't get one, just tell us.
- 2 You can obtain the full discussion paper on rent control. Free. We welcome your written comments and suggestions.
- 3 You can attend public meetings which will be held in Barrie, Etobicoke, London, Ottawa, Toronto, Sudbury and Windsor throughout March. If you wish to speak, please call the number below. (This opportunity will obviously be limited by space and time.)

Also when the proposed rent control law is introduced, you may appear before a legislative committee to make your views known.

We would like to hear from you by April 5, please.

BEST OF THE BEST: On Friday night, a reception and awards presentation was held for the Celebration '91: Best of Members' Show at the Rails' End Gallery. Some of the winners were Leo Dobrzensky, John Lennard, Jan Murray, Judge Jeanne Beaulieu Koch, Peter Hoad and Ricki Woods.

Judges have much talent to chose from at Members' Show

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

WITH A RECORD NUMBER of high-quality entrants, judges of Celebration '91: The Best of Members Show certainly had their work cut out for them.

On Friday, Jerry Coulas and Jeanne Beaulieu Koch spent the afternoon at the Rails' End Gallery, viewing and adjudicating this year's showcase of work by members of the Haliburton Highlands Guild of Fine Arts. That night, the awards were presented at the show's opening.

In the scholarship category, the following artisans have been awarded a week at the Haliburton School of Fine Arts this summer: The Ethel Curry Award for Excellence in Memory of Pat Irwin went to Maggie Longworth for her willow table and mirror, John Lennard for his brightly coloured painting "Morning Sun in Autumn", and Jan Murray for her handmade and hand painted boxes. The Best in Clay award went to Ricki Woods for her thin-necked bottle. Leo Dobrzensky's subtly coloured painting earned her the Eagle Lake Women Award for New Craftsman. Doris Waterworth's child's sweater with the dinosaurs had several offers to purchase as well the Knitting award. In Painting, Gary Chapman's water-colour of the sun streaming through a swamp was awarded, while Eleanor Hamilton's fruit bell pole won top honours for Rug Hooking. Peter Hoad's limestone polar bear won best in Sculpture. And Brenda Cooper's finely crafted and delicate silk jacket came first in Weaving.

For the Awards of Merits, which do not come with a scholarship, the accolades went to Mary Wallace for her delightful Loon-a-tic's fishing basket, Karla Thomson's quilted rendition of Haliburton Fall, Helen McNaughton's painting My Solitude, Chris Montgomery's stained glass windows, Dzintra Schlotter, and Jamie Woodman's cloth photo montage, Ruby's Locket.

The Juror's Choice Award for special recognition went to Chris Stender's startling and dynamic Scarlet Glory, a large wall hanging of painted silk.

"This exhibition offers an excellent opportunity to view arts and crafts indigenous to the County of Haliburton," says Curator Holly Hutchison.

Best of Members runs until March 16 and people are invited to mark a ballot of their favourite entrant.

Channel endangered due to large docks: cottagers

by BRIAN RODNICK

Staff Reporter

Docks on Constance Island will pose a risk to both the environment and other cottagers, neighbours of the island told Stanhope council Wednesday.

In a lively public meeting over a proposed zoning amendment for the Kushog Lake island, a group of cottagers across the channel presented council with letters opposing Constance's owners' decision to build on the island's east side.

"You only bought the island, not the water around it," said Marie Thomson, who has owned a cottage on the mainland for 30 years.

Those present were worried docks for new cottages jut into the channel causing boat congestion and endangering the spawning and feeding grounds of local wildlife. This includes loons and blue herrings.

"I'm a farmer and am very science and aware of what is going on in the environment," said Gary Marquis, one of the island's three owners. "You are worried about a problem that isn't even there yet."

The owners want to build on that side of the island because the health unit advised this would be better for septic systems.

"We have meet with all their (MNR, MOE) criteria," he said. "A lumber company could have bought the island and stripped it, or even a nudist colony. We're not trying to be greedy. Our intention on the island is to create somewhere down the line cottages for our children."

"After what we have said, we're surprised you would want to put your children in danger," said cottager Anton Kosztyo.

Due to Kushog's six foot drop in summer, Kosztyo is worried three of the lots will need long docks. This will pose a hazard to boats coming into the channel and to swimmers as the boats try to navigate the waterway.

The cottagers are also concerned increased boat traffic will speed up shoreline erosion and stir up the lake bed clogging water intake pipes to cottages.

"Those guys are not going to be speeding coming into their docks so erosion will not be as much," said Clerk Administrator Gerald Bain. But the cottagers said other boats and water skiers from the lake speed through the channel regardless.

"Are you tied into only one configuration for the lots?" asked Thomson. Marquis said if they were to change lot locations, the whole process would have to begin again from scratch. "There is no way you are going to satisfy everyone," he said.

Despite the show of opposition, council passed the proposed zoning amendment. The cottagers said they will appeal the decision.

"The gentlemen have gotten all the necessary approvals," said Deputy-reeve Ann Barker. "If you (cottagers) get together, you might be able to work out some kind of an agreement to avoid an OMB hearing."

New system needed to take the bite out of free-roaming cats

by BRIAN RODNICK

Staff Reporter

Careful who you offer that saucer of milk to.

Vicious stray cats are not a serious county hazard, but Chief Public Health Inspector Bob MacNaull is taking no chances and has asked municipalities to set up a warning system for when they are a problem.

MacNaull said annually there are four or five cases of stray dump cats scratching or biting people who try to pick them up. Worried the cats may have rabies, the people then contact the local health unit office.

The municipality is responsible for paying the costs of picking up, and if necessary, destroying the animal. But there also needs to be some system for notifying the municipality when a problem arises.

Dysart decided that by-law officer Don Van Nood will also act as animal control officer and will be given pointers by the health unit "to make him aware of precautions to be taken when dealing with animals that are suspected of having rabies," said MacNaull.

"It's better to make a policy before something happens," said Dysart Reeve Bill Davis at Monday's council meeting.

However, Stanhope felt it would "cross that bridge" when it came to it.

"I've never run into something like this," said Stanhope By-law Officer Jim Moore at Wednesday's council meeting. "I would like to think I could handle it when it comes along."

In November, Lutterworth council allowed its by-law officer Ernie Roynance to take a pre-exposure vaccine to rabies in case he should come in contact with an exposed animal.

TWO BIG thank yous go to Mel Flood who donated one day of work in September to help the Association undertake title searching work and to Pat Cummings who tirelessly helped out on mailing and documentation. Your help was greatly appreciated and made the process much easier. Thanks!

The Haliburton Highlands Nordic Trail Association recently updated Recreation Trail Agreements with property owners who kindly donate use of their property for our extensive trail system in the winter. If you are a property owner and we missed you, please call us at 457-1640 to receive your family's free season's pass and an updated Recreation Trail Agreement. These agreements are essential as they provide protection to property owners and help us to conduct minimal, ongoing maintenance work as needed to maintain the quality of our trail system. We wish to thank all property owners for their co-operation and support of our unique cross country ski system. Without you, we could not have one of the best cross country ski systems in Ontario.

Recently, our office has received numerous calls from concerned skiers who have encountered snowmobilers on the cross country trail system. We trust that snowmobilers are unaware that motorized vehicles are prohibited on these trails. Motorized vehicles (albeit maintenance equipment) are restricted on most cross country ski trails because it is impractical and very dangerous for both sports enthusiasts to be using the same trail together. Safety Act changes to affect many businesses

by BRIAN RODNICK
Staff Reporter

Changes in government legislation should make the work place safer, people attending a seminar on the Occupational Health and Safety Act were told recently.

"They will strengthen the idea of a joint responsibility of safety between the worker and management," said Peter Overington, former Chief Instructor of the Industrial Accident Prevention Association.

His speech was sponsored by the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce; five people attended at the Bonnie View Inn.

"The idea of Bill 208 is to protect everyone," he said. "Even if someone comes into your workplace to service some equipment, you have a responsibility for that person's safety."

The biggest change in the Act is a more-encompassing realm of authority.

Beginning January 1st, any company with six to 20 regular employees must have a health and safety representative. This representative will be elected by other employees and will have to perform several functions.

These include making monthly safety inspections of the workplace and to bring forth to management any violations in writing. If nothing is done to correct the problem, the Ministry of Labour could be called in to conduct a safety audit.

"The representative will have a great deal of responsibility in a smaller company," said Overington.

Larger businesses with 20 to 50 regular employees must form a two-person health and safety committee, made up of an employee and someone from management.

For firms with more than 50 employees, the health and safety committee is doubled, and its members must be certified by taking a program.

Once they are certified, a committee member will have the power to shut down an unsafe workplace, even a department they are not working in.

Individual employees have had this right for the last eight years, said Overington, but only in their own work areas.

He expects at least 100,000 people in the province will have to take this certification program which includes 40 to 70 hours of training.

"It is my belief we will not likely see a certified worker until at least 1992," he said.

All companies must also come up with a health and safety policy which should be posted in a place where all employees can see it. The policy should also be published in English and the other majority tongue of the workplace.

Overington said this policy should encompass a number of considerations including an inspection program, with a section on induction to familiarize employees with emergency procedures; hazardous areas of the workplace should be identified, such as where dangerous chemicals may be stored. "You have to point them out to people. Never assume someone will know what is hazardous"; and finally, a session on the proper use of safety equipment, such as hard hats and gloves.

Businesses with seasonal employees are expected to follow the same guidelines of electing a representative and committee (depending on the number of employees).

"For ease, why not keep the rep or committee all year round," said Overington. He suggested electing workers who are recalled each season.

But it is expected to take months for businesses to comply with the new changes, even though they came into effect last month.

"They are not too high on everyone's list," said Overington. "They aren't exactly well known, even if they have been advertised in the paper."

He doesn't know when the Ministry will begin to enforce these changes.

It was estimated more than eight million working days were lost in 1989 due to on-the-job accidents; 99 per cent of which were caused by human error.

Trail patrols sell passes

our Association, property owners have generously given permission to allow only skiers on their properties. Other use of the property violates the agreements and thus jeopardizes the well being of an important industry in our county. Likewise, it is strongly advised that skiers avoid snowmobile trails at all times.

Response from our trail patrolling drive has been terrific! Skiers without passes are purchasing $7.100 tickets on the trail system; these same passes are available at nearby outlets for $6.00. If you are a keen skier who wouldn't mind earning a little extra cash patrolling the trails while skiing, give us a call at 457-1640 and we will get you a package.

Trail Conditions as of February 15, 1991: — 25 cm base, 15 cm new snow; 90 kms trail open; track set; rating fantastic — best skiing this winter.

Something New: Pinestone Inn is offering night skiing on Friday and Saturday evenings from 6:30—9:30 p.m. on 2 kms of trail. Call for further information at 457-1800.

Council's credibility challenged was approached.

Reeve Bradley was contacted by the Ontario Municipal Board. The Board has advised me, in writing, that Reeve Bradley advised them that "none of the projects included in the (application) were commenced prior to the spring of 1990".

Perhaps my understanding of the "formulation of a fire department" is different from Reeve Bradley's. I would consider the purchase of fire vehicles and equipment to be part of the "formulation". I also have certified Minutes of a meeting of the Rural Sounding Committee dated August 11, 1989 in which Reeve Bradley announces "Our new garage extension (fire station) should be completed by mid-September 1989."

Following the same theme, ratepayers were told they would have a possible savings of $100 in the insurance premiums as a result of having a Fire Dept. would all those ratepayers who have realized a saving in their cost of insurance please step forward? Those who have not seen a decrease in their insurance should perhaps, step forward at the election polls next November!

Some of you may have questioned where the money is coming from to finance the Fire Dept. How many of you have been told the money came from the sale of municipal lands? True, the Township did sell $199,332. worth of land in 1990. This looks like a substantial amount of money, right? Did the elected Council also tell you that the Township experienced a shortfall in expected revenue in 1990 of approximately $100,000? (according to financial information supplied by the Township in November of 1990). I'll bet you weren't told about the significant budget over-runs in 1990 either. All in all the $199,332 might just cover the drop in revenue and the rampant over-expenditures in 1990. The 1990 year end Auditor's Report is not available at this point, but unless circumstances changes drastically between November 1990 and December 31, 1990, I cannot see how the Township could be in a solvent position. I only hope the ratepayers are prepared to pick-up the cost on their 1991 Tax Bill.

I, for one, have a real problem with the credibility and the financial management skills of the Council Members of the Township of Cardiff.

Neighbour opposes proposed gravel pit

by BRIAN RODNICK

Staff Reporter

A zoning amendment approved by Stanhope council for a local gravel pit may be appealed by a neighbour who is worried her property will be affected.

Barbara Beggs told council Wednesday that the pit's presence will decrease the value of her property and damage her well.

"Why do we need to put a pit there when there is another one two kilometres down the road?" she asked. She was referring to the pit just south of Carnarvon on Highway 35 which council said has been exhausted.

The new pit is on Highway 118, about two kilometres east of Carnarvon. Last summer Royel Paving obtained a wayside permit to extract gravel for the construction on 118. This permit allows gravel to be used for one project.

Royel says the southern portion of the 100 acres contains usable deposits and has asked council to rezone the land to allow the company to extract it.

The temporary pit, which was closer to Beggs' house and is zoned general industrial, may still be developed, said Deputy-reeve Ann Barker. "You could have worse things than a pit," said Councillor Eleanor Harrison. "You could have a factory running 24 hours a day."

"If you didn't have any severe problems when the pit was closer, I think you wouldn't have any if the pit was farther away," said Harrison. "If Royel has been that careful with the top end there is no reason they wouldn't be as careful with the bottom end."

"I'm worried about my water," said Beggs. "I have a drilled well and I have to watch it."

The Ministry of Natural Resources has said if extraction takes place below the water table, it must use sedimentation control measures to prevent damage to nearby water courses.

"Could Royel sign an agreement to ensure responsibility for any water problems?" asked Clerk Administrator Gerald Bain. "I would have to check into it," replied Royel's Earl Godwin.

Bain also suggested drafting an agreement to ensure both Beggs and Royel would compensate each other should the pit alter property values.

"That's a long way down the road," said Beggs. Royel estimates the life of the pit to be 10 years.

"Even with the by-law being passed, you can still work out final details with Royel," Bain told Beggs. "There are still avenues open."

Beggs said she will appeal council's decision which could include an Ontario Municipal Board hearing.

Committee creates conflict

Minden's new Finance and Administration Committee is stepping on the toes of other committees much to some councillors' chagrin.

"We're going to have to work some of the bumps out," said Councillor Mike Maher at Thursday's meeting when the finance committee over-rode a Recreation Committee proposal to send three people to a training seminar. The finance committee, made up of Reeve Ray Moore, Deputy-reeve Bern Berry and Councillor Lewis Stevens, said only two needed training.

"If time is of the essence, let's disband these other committees and put in on finance and administration — which is ridiculous," said Maher, prompting Moore to offer to resign from the committee. "That way it will come to council and (all of you) can make the decisions," Moore said.

"The committee looked good when we first got into it but I don't think these decisions are helping it," Maher said. And nothing would be resolved if Moore quit, he added.

Councillor Bob Sisson, who sits on the Recreation Committee, voted against accepting the minutes of the finance committee because he was angry his committee's recommendations weren't followed.

When it came time to accepting the Recreation Committee meetings, Maher also had qualms about the process and the finance committee's apparent authority over other committees.

However, if the minutes weren't passed, it would be as if the meeting, which included election of a chairman, had never existed. "If we want to completely destroy the committee system we should make this meeting a non-entity," Maher said.

Dog owners will pay higher fines

by BRIAN RODNICK

Staff Reporter

Stanhope dog owners will have to pay higher fines if their animals are caught running free and without a proper license.

By-law Officer Jim Moore asked council at Wednesday's meeting to amend the municipality's dog control by-law to incorporate higher fines set under the Provincial Offences Act.

"The changes are to give more clout to the by-law officer," said Moore.

An owner could now pay a maximum fine of $5000 if his dog is caught running free and a maximum of $100 if it is picked up without a license.

"The whole purpose of having a dog licensed is so we know who the dog belongs to just by looking at its tag," said Moore. "The fines are flexible. It isn't my intention to give every dog owner the maximum fine."

"I don't feel these fines are too high," he said, adding if a dog is constantly left to run free and it bites people, it might be worth charging the owner the maximum $5000 fine.

Dog licensing fees are unaffected by the amendment and will remain the same.

Inner scars linger long after the fire

Darla Searle will always live with the pain

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

TELL DARLA SEARLE that she looks wonderful and she might give you a half smile, quietly say thanks and then burst into tears as soon as she gets home. The scars from last September's workplace accident may be fading, but the psychological scars and pains burn deep.

"I'm not wonderful," she'd scream inside herself when people thought that because her face had cleared up, she was fine. "I don't know if I'll ever get over it. I don't know if I will ever lose my fear of fire. I don't know if I will ever get over the hurt of the way I was dealt with (by my employers.) I feel the whole accident was preventable."

On the Saturday night of the Labour Day weekend, it was Mrs. Searle's last day of waitressing at the PineStone. Three months before she had married Steve Searle and they had yet to be able to live together. That night, he was going to pick her up and they could finally begin their new life together in Oshawa.

Around eight o'clock, the guests in the ballroom were giving speeches so she went into the kitchen to say goodbye to the people she'd met in her two years there. Another waitress rushed in, in a hurry to prepare one of those flaming desserts. Volunteering to help, Mrs. Searle threw a match into the portable burner to see if there was any methyl hydrate in it. "Oh darn, this thing is empty again," she said. The other waitress, not knowing the match was still burning, reached up to the shelf, grabbed some methyl hydrate and poured it into the burner.

"I remember a ball of fire coming at me," says Mrs. Searle. In panic, the other woman threw up the jug of methyl hydrate, which spilled its contents on Mrs. Searle. She crossed her arms in front of her face to protect it and then her clothes started burning. Everyone screamed and panicked, not knowing what to do.

"I was looking at people and they were looking at me. I thought to myself 'If I don't do something, I'm going to burn to death.'" So she jumped into the large sink and began pouring water over herself.

Alerted by the screams, a policeman and a nurse, who were guests in the dining room, came into the kitchen and began rubbing ice over the burns.

An ambulance took her to the Haliburton Hospital. She had first degree burns on her face and right leg, second degree burns on her left forearm, and the more serious third degree burns on her stomach and inside left leg. It would take an hour or so before she was given morphine, and while humans do not have the ability to remember pain, they can recall being in pain.

"I remember every detail," says Mrs. Searle, at home for a week's working "vacation" at Dell Haven, the bed and breakfast in Haliburton owned by her parents, Harry and Joan Towns. "While you're in pain, you think you'd forget it, but luckily you do. You'd go insane if you didn't. There's no pain like burn pain."

The skin is the body's largest organ and superficial burns hurt the most. Because burns were deeper on her stomach, she originally felt no pain there. However, for the burns on the rest of her body, imagine what it's like to burn your finger on the stove. People have often wondered how she withstood the pain, and she says "When I would be at my worst pain, I thought 'What would Joey Filion have felt?'" Joey Filion was the young boy who suffered massive burns after running into a burning house because he thought a relative was inside.

However, at the hospital, she was trying her best not to concentrate on the pain. "I got to thinking the other day and I started crying when I remembered when my father came into the emergency ward. I was trying so hard to be tough. I kept telling them I was fine. To have my dad leave the room in tears because his little girl is there in pain, that was hard for me."

Some time after midnight, the helicopter ambulance left Haliburton with Mrs. Searle aboard. "To keep my mind off the pain, I tried to figure out where we were by the amount of lights. It was a perfectly clear night and you could see into the stores at the Eaton's Centre, we flew so low." The helicopter landed at Sick Kids and an ambulance took her to Wellesley Hospital. It was about two in the morning. (If six hours seems like a long time, Mrs. Searle says there was a man in her unit who got burned at work in Toronto

'I don't know if I'll ever lose my fear of fire,' says Darla Searle, who's clothes caught fire last September and now takes extra precautions in the kitchen. Although the physical scars are healing (she must still wear a pressure glove on one hand), it's the inner pain which won't go away.

at eight in the morning. There were no ambulances available and finally he took a taxi, which got lost. He arrived at Wellesley at seven that night.)

For the next 15 days, twice a day, her bandages had to be removed. "They give you a shot of morphine half an hour before but it only helps the pain stop sooner afterward."

"The burn unit is incredible. I have nothing but praise for all of them. The nurses were always apologetic when they took the bandages off. They'd do whatever it would take to get it over with as quickly as possible."

"It must not be easy for them but they're all really up people. Some have been there for years."

When asked how she psychologically survived the pain, especially before the bandages were removed and pain was imminent, Mrs. Searle says she prayed for calmness a lot, and has an amazing family on both sides of the marriage.

"You do what you've got to do to get through it. You realize how fortunate you are to have your health. I'm walking, I'm talking, I'm breathing."

"My husband Steve was more supportive than I could have hoped for. I went through this whole period when I thought he'd never find me beautiful again. I kept apologizing that I wasn't the person he married three months ago."

"The first night I cooked dinner, something burned on the stove. I must have used half a box of baking soda. He came home and the kitchen was white, I was in tears and dinner was ruined."

Then she laughs. "I tried to tell my husband I couldn't do dishes but he didn't believe me."

But it's now that she's healing physically that her fear of burning makes her wake up scream-

Operators take a ride on global radio waves

by BRIAN RODNICK

Staff Reporter

IS IT SNOWING IN MINSK? If the atmospheric conditions are right, Ron Owens of Haliburton can find out in a matter of minutes without having to leave his basement.

"You can spend all day on this," he says, fiddling with a dial on his radio receiver. Owens has recently obtained his amateur radio licence and joins the ranks of other local "ham" operators who have the capability to instantly send their voices criss-crossing around the globe.

There is hardly a nook or cranny in the world where operators have not communicated with one another. For Owens, the farthest away he's reached are the USSR — with a man called "Larry" — and Brazil.

"When you're an amateur operator you only have to give your call sign and first name. Last names are unimportant." His sign is VE3ROH. The VE stands for Canada, the 3 for Ontario and ROH is Owens' personal calling card.

He says it stands for Receiver Off the Hook, but other local ham operators just call him Ron On the Hill. Owens' home is on a high hill overlooking the village of Haliburton.

"But if you can't come with a name yourself, others will come up with one for you," he jokes. Before an operator chooses his sign, he is given three choices to pick from the federal government. No two operators have the same sign and the government keeps a careful eye to make sure pirate operators are taken off the air.

"This is a privilege, not a right," says Cec Jones of Minden. He is the Chairman of the Minden Amateur Radio Club, which has around 30 members.

Jones received his operator's licence in 1972 after developing an interest in radio working for the Canadian Armed Forces signal core during WWII.

"One doesn't have to come from this type of a background to get involved," he says. "You meet all kinds."

As it happens, Owens worked for Bell Canada before taking early retirement five years ago. But his interest in amateur radio dates back to the time he was a teenager when a few tubes were put together to make a crude radio.

"I attended a few classes on amateur radio, but they were so large you get lost in them."

Until getting his operator's licence, Owens used his vintage 1963 receiver for strictly shortwave transmissions, which meant he could listen but not talk.

To get his licence required several extensive months of training under the tutelage of Jones, who charges $50 for the course. "We started with five, but only three made it through the course," says Owens, adding how some people find it frustrating to meet the requirements. One of which is to be able to do 10 words of Morse code per minute.

Once he had his licence, it was time to update some of his equipment. The cost of getting into amateur radio varies.

"A lot of hams start out with second hand equip-

'You meet all kinds,' says Ron Owens, who uses his ham radio at home to travel around the world.

Former waitress now worries about fires

ing in the night. "We have a basement apartment and I was afraid if there was a fire we couldn't get out. I'm now afraid to be in the back of a two-door car because I wonder how I'll get out. I keep checking out where the emergency exits are in buildings — the first thing I imagine is 'How can I get out if there's a fire?'"

Other effects of the fire include have an extreme sensitivity to heat and cold. She can't go out when it's really cold, or the burned skin will react as if it's frostbitten. She can't go out in the sun, because skin takes two years to heal and there will be permanent discolouration if she doesn't give her pigments time to recuperate. Apparently sweat glands don't reproduce, providing another reason why it's dangerous to get too hot — her skin can't release the heat.

"When do I chance being out in the sun? After two and a half years?" Right now, she doesn't want to take any chances at all.

There's still some healing needed on her hand, which is covered by a pressure bandage to prevent scarring. She might have an operation on her stomach to remove the welts there. But the inner healing is going to be more difficult.

In her two years at PineStone, she says she was never given any instructions on dealing with flammable materials. She didn't know to "stop, drop and roll" when on fire. The match would have had the chance to burn itself out if the methyl hydrate had been kept in a locked cupboard, and if she had been using a long match, as she had suggested, she would have been able to blow it out instead of throwing it in the pot.

However, the Workers' Compensation Board says it's an employee's responsibility to avoid unsafe conditions, she says. "If I didn't like what I was doing, I should have questioned it," she says she was told. WCB pays her $250 a week, based on a waitress's salary, not taking tips into account. (In April, she hopes to start a new job at an Oshawa bank.)

D'Arcy McKittrick, general manager at the PineStone, says he feels the resort wasn't negligent.

"I feel bad about what happened to Darla, it was really unfortunate," he says, but staff errors were made and the Ministry of Labour did not find the resort at fault. The resort's safety record until that point was excellent, especially for such a large complex, "but we felt we could do a little more."

PineStone has formed a committee for health and safety, headed by Mike Maher, who has already implemented many interesting programs. "He has the authority to stop any operation at any point in time" if he feels it's dangerous, Mr. McKittrick says.

A Ministry of Labour representative has told the PineStone its program "could be a model for many resorts," the general manager added.

But Mrs. Searle feels more could be done — and should have been done after the accident. While fellow staff members, and even guests, supported her in the hospital by visiting, sending gifts and telephoning, Mrs. Searle didn't hear from the PineStone shareholders. That's what hurts the most.

It's these feelings of anger which make the healing so difficult. The skin has its natural mechanisms for healing, but not the emotions. Physical pain has subsided but it has left bitterness behind.

"I have a physical reminder every minute of every day of what happened. It's not something you can put away and pretend never happened. The scars won't always affect me the way they do now, but they're always going to be there."

Radio operators take tours of the world

ment," says Jones. "It comes down to whatever you can afford to spend."

Jones estimates he has spent between $3000 to $5000 on his equipment, but a novice could get into it for as little as $200.

"It's like getting a good buy on an old Volkswagen. Problems come up trying to keep it going," says Owens. "My system is far from being a Cadillac."

Just this past Christmas, "Santa" brought Owens a $1500 receiver, a quarter of the size of his vintage one and more powerful.

But regardless of the power, he says transmissions still depend on the atmosphere and how your signal bounces off it.

"Sometimes to make contact with another country is pure luck. You just have to hit the right time of day and the conditions have to be right."

With a flip of a switch he tunes into a radio station from the Middle East. The announcer is speaking Arabic, but an English translation is added.

There has been a great deal of interest in short-wave since the outbreak of the Gulf War, but Owens points out Iraq is one of a very few countries — perhaps six or eight — that has never requested ham traffic.

"They can't talk to us and we can't call them," he says.

There are still countless other countries to converse with and ham operators never run out of things to talk about. Or do they?

"Sometimes we do," says Jones. "But we can always talk about equipment."

"It's the type of hobby you can turn off and never bother with for a month. But like any hobby, there is the possibility of becoming addicted to it."

Owens agrees and says he spends only 18 to 20 hours a week on the air. "It can be exciting. Especially when you make contact with a new country you have never heard from before. You get up and run to the map to find what their code is to call them back."

COMMUNITY NEWS

'To be a good clogger, you have to have a good feel for music, a good sense of rhythm and you have to be agile,' says John Dickinson, with microphone, leading the Haliburton Highlands Cloggers: Kim Henry, Connie Houghton, Bonnie MacAusland and Lisa Henry.

A-clogging they all go. . .

New group brings popular dancing style to the Highlands

by MARTHA PERKINS

Editor

IT SOUNDS AS IF a team of horses has learned how to dance. If you close your eyes at the West Guilford Community Centre on Wednesday nights, the rhythmic clackety-clack, clackety-clack of steel touching floor conjures up an image of an equine version of Fred Astaire.

But don't close your eyes. Because then you'd miss out on all the intricate steps and fancy flare of what's known as clog dancing.

"It's a combination of tap, step dance and square dance," says instructor John Dickinson of West Guilford, just before he gives the Haliburton Highlands Cloggers their sixth lesson. "I just love it. I could clog seven days a week."

Attached to the bottom of his white performance shoes are thin metal plates at the toe and heel. Not only do he get a sound when the metal hits the floor, but the two layers of metal add resonance to a dance which is meant to be listened to as well as watched.

When the Oak Ridge Boys begin singing "Elvira", the other people in the basement of the community centre share his enthusiasm. Instead of "step, brush, brush, brush" of Broadway dancing, you get "step, clack, clack, clack, step behind, clack, clack." Hands wave in the air or clap underneath knees as the five dancers dance a square in unison. Dances are normally named after the person who invented them.

At first it looks easy, but then Mr. Dickinson speeds up the music. There are a lot of feet and hand movements to keep track of all at once, and still keep in time with the music.

"To be a good clogger, you have to have a good feel for music, a good sense of rhythm, and you have to be agile," he says. But age is no barrier. The oldest clogger Mr. Dickinson has met is 87, and he learned how to clog when he was 76. "It takes a good clogger to stay with him. He really steps it off."

For 10 years, Mr. Dickinson was a step dancer. Although the dancing styles are similar, he was so frustrated unlearning all his step dances, that he almost gave up on clogging. He's glad he stuck with it.

"It's more showy (than step dancing) and people seem to enjoy it more. They can put that much more flash into it."

Clogging had a less than glamorous origin, however. It started in England in the last century for miners who were demanding more pay. In those days, they wore wooden shoes with bars on the toes. To protest, says Mr. Dickinson, they used to "march down the streets making as much noise as they could." Eventually, a few steps and a little rhythm were added and clogging spread to Ireland and the Appalachian Mountains. Quite often it's associated with Down East, because it's very popular in Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

As well as starting up Haliburton Highlands Cloggers, which is the newest group in Ontario, Mr. Dickinson is a member of Oshawa's Special Edition Cloggers which performs for various charities and organizations. Last year they performed twice at Hyland Crest, shows much enjoyed by the residents. People who saw Step in Time at the Bluegrass Festival in Haliburton might also recognize Mr. Dickinson.

So far, his converts are quite young. Kim Henry, Connie Houghton and Sharon Lancia are 12, Lisa Henry is 13, and Bonnie MacAusland is youthful as they gather to practice on Wednesday nights beginning at 7 p.m.

Anyone interested in having some fun, keeping in shape, and learning a clack or two is welcome to join. Call Mr. Dickinson at 754-2816 for more information.

Spirit Week has 'rock-ous' start

There weren't many people older than 18 in the gym on Monday when HHSS's Spirit Week got off to a raucous start with the battle of the air bands. Some featured guitarists were from AC/DC, at left, and KISS, below. Events are planned throughout the week for the students

Clothes make a statement

But not all agree with what you have to say for yourself

STUDENT LIFE AT HHSS

by: ERIN LYNCH

OUR TEENAGE YEARS: books have been written on them, magazines are filled with articles about them, teachers are told of them, and parents have first-hand experience. In these years, besides having crazy hormones, pimples, boyfriends/girlfriends, peer pressure, problems with parents and new experiences with the adult world, there is more. It is a time for becoming what we are and finding ourselves; trying to decide who we want to be and where that will take us in life. To do this we may try new things, including new self-expressions, that being how we express ourselves by what we wear. How we express ourselves is usually a reflection on how we are feeling and what kind of image we are trying to portray.

Dress codes which prohibit such attire as shorts, ripped jeans and beer-slogan shirts are stopping that expression in my opinion!

Does wearing certain clothes stop the learning process that we go to school to receive?

When the subject is brought up to Stephen Smith, he says dress codes "deteriorate personal individualism of the students."

Dress codes are always a very controversial subject. Usually students are against them and teachers are for them. I talked to Mr. Brohman, the vice-principal, to find out why he thought dress codes are necessary.

"We have to have some type of conformity," he says. "In developing a dress code rule you have to suggest something that will agree with the administration, students and teachers, and that has some type of common sense. Rules cannot be made to be perfect for the greatest majority; it has to work to give some value in the system. In the code of behaviour it is one of the rules that help our school have some sense of belonging and pride."

After talking to Mr. Brohman I understood his point. When you're out in the working world there are rules that you will have to follow in any type of work. Having a dress code is not only to prepare us for what lays ahead but also to give us a sense of belonging and pride in our school. I'm not saying I agree with him but I understand him more and I hope you do, too!

Persian war changes holiday itinerary

CARNARVON NEWS

by: ANN MCKAY

Gibraltar owing to the Gulf War and had to come through Holland and fly home from Amsterdam.

Home from their Florida vacation are Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gregory and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chapple.

Another snowmobile death, this time an American on Halls Lake. Although it was reported he went through the ice, in fact he ran off the ice into open water. Why not hire a guide — lots of men would be glad to earn a few bucks and are familiar with the territory could be another service of resorts.

Ladies take note: "The Worlds Day of Prayer" for the Carnarvon-Maple Lake area will be held at St. Andrew's Church West Guilford on Friday, March 1st at 2 p.m.

Mr. and Mrs. Greg Moore of St. Catharines spent a few days in the area celebrating their first Wedding Anniversary. Mrs. Bill McKay accompanied them back to St. Catharines.

THIS WEEK

World Day of Prayer sees united worship

DORSET NEWS

by: PHYLLIS
BRISCOE

The World Day of Prayer will be held on Friday, March 1 in Knox United Church, Dorset. The series begins at 2 p.m. The theme is "On the Journey Together" and was prepared by women of Kenya. Everyone is welcome to this service and a large attendance is hoped for. We are in very troubled times and community co-operation is important. This service was at one time for women only but in later years men have been included and more men are seen at the service each year.

Some birthday notes: Celebrating last week were Kyle Jones, Daisy Townsend and Jon Derry. We hope they had happy ones.

I had a phone call to tell me that Dave Villard and his girlfriend Dolly were married quietly at a friend's home on Thursday, February 14, sweetheart's day. They are honeymooning at Niagara on the Lake. We congratulate them and wish them more happiness.

Intended for last week

Dorset's annual Winter Carnival, "Snowball '91" takes place on February 23/91 at the Dorset Recreation Centre. It's All For Fun and Fun For All.

All participants require a SNOWBALL '91 booster button, which costs $2.00 and may be obtained at any place of business in the village. There numerous activities, which include something for everyone. There will be a Pancake Breakfast, a Fishing Derby, Family Skating, several food outlets including a bake sale and many, many more attractions. We will elaborate to a greater extent in next week's news, with costs, times, etc.

The Dorset Senior Club had a jolly time last week, enjoying a pot-lunch with shuffleboard and card games following. There was an excellent turnout.

I have really kept my cool this winter, not having complained once about those noisy monsters that roam the highways and byways night and day. May the Good Lord be with them and guide them safely on their way. After all I can sleep next summer.

St. Mary Magdalene's Dorset Anglican Church has once again an active Sunday School or as it is known to-day, Christian Development, in operation, after many years of its absence. In the early sixties there was a room added to the church for this purpose and it was an active place for many years, with the late Phyllis McKey in charge. In later years it was utilized as an after church coffee room. It is nice to see it being used for its original purpose.

WHO IS YOUR VALENTINE? St. Valentine's Day was a time of excitement but not very much romance for these Haliburton CHACE Place children, whose mothers organized a Valentine's potluck lunch last Thursday.

Women gather to affirm rights

WOMEN AROUND the world will gather on Friday March 8 to celebrate International Women's Day. Locally, women (and their children) of Haliburton County are invited to the Dysart Community Centre (above the Haliburton arena), Friday March 8, 1991, 6:30-9:30 p.m. to celebrate the spirit of women around the world. The 1991 theme, "The Seasons of Our Lives", was selected to respect and honour the strengths of women of all ages. The event has been organized by the Haliburton County Women's Committee.

The evening will begin with a pot-luck dinner. After dinner, the evening will proceed with entertainment by "Precious Friends", Dianne Hagerman and Janice Benoit, a local twosome who spread laughter and joy whenever they sing. Following Janice and Dianne, a lively and participatory storytelling event will illustrate "the seasons of our lives".

All women and children of Haliburton County of all ages are invited to attend this special event. The evening events are free, but each woman is asked to bring a favourite dish to share for the pot-luck feast, and also her own plate, cup and cutlery. Women are encouraged to car pool when possible.

International Women's Day has been celebrated for over a century to mark the anniversary of the first protest march (March 8, 1857, New York) against the terrible working conditions for women textile and garment workers. The song "Bread and Roses" was written in 1912 and has become a common theme song for the day. Many people recognize the power of the third verse of this song, even today 80 years later: "As we come marching, marching, unnumbered women dead, / Go crying through our singing, their ancient cry for bread. / Small art and love and beauty their drudging spirits knew / Yes, it is bread we fight for, but we fight for roses, too." Even though women in Canada no longer struggle to gain the right to vote, March 8 is a day to celebrate women's life accomplishments and to recognize the struggles still remaining for women internationally.

The Haliburton County Women's Committee is an open committee of women which plans events of particular interest to women of the County. The members hope that ideas will be generated at this event for ongoing projects that will benefit the whole community. For further information regarding this year's International Women's Day Celebration, or the Haliburton Women's Committee please contact the Women's Safety Network at (705) 457-3355.

Community Care needs drivers

KINMOUNT & AREA NEWS

by: MILLIE
MOSS

Dolly LeCraw of Norland is progressing at home following a fall on the ice near her home on Wednesday, January 23. She was taken to Ross Memorial Hospital on the Wednesday where surgery took place the next day to repair a badly broken left wrist. Thanks to her daughters Judy and Tracy who helped her all week.

Our sympathy to all the family and friends of Frankie Cragge of Victoria Road who died at home on Friday, January 25.

Rotha Bryant, Larry Guest, Helen Graham, Jason Moss and Gil Graham have been on the ill or hurting list of late and here's hoping all of you are better soon.

More Community Care Drivers are needed in the Norland and Cobocok areas. Gas money is reimbursed. If you can be of help please call Sandra or Lynn, Fenelon Falls, 887-1122.

Mr. Bruce Ripley, Revenue Canada, has kindly accepted an invitation to come to Norland Community Hall on highway 35 in Norland on Thursday, February 28 at 1:30 p.m. to explain/answer your questions etc. regarding the G.S.T. and or sales tax. Many of you may have money coming to you that you may be missing because forms have not been filed out and Mr. Ripley will be here for all of us. Mark the date on your calendar and do come out. It is to your definite advantage. See you there!

Happy birthday to Jesse Buxcey of Norland on February 21.

Don't forget too, if you can spare 1-6 hours a week your help would sure be appreciated at the Victorian Order of Nurses Adult Day Centre in the Gateway Plaza on Mary Street West in Lindsay. They are open Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 8:30 a.m. to 5:00 p.m. A top notch group of people to which I can personally attest.

Well folks, stay well and happy and give me a call at 454-2395 with your news for this column. Be sure to call me early in the week because with our mails going by way of Peterborough or Toronto before we get it back this way again, there's no way your news can always make it for the next edition on time.

Kinmount Legion Branch 441 presents the Caygeon Players in the play "Arsenic and Old Lace" on Saturday, February 23 beginning at 7:30 p.m. The play by Joseph Kesselring should be enjoyed by all and everyone is invited to attend at this special evening at the Kinmount Legion Hall.

COMMUNITY NEWS

Cardiff lets its voice be heard

by HELEN JAMES

About 40 people assembled in the Cardiff Community Centre on February 11 to participate in the first of a series of NDP sponsored public meetings, open to all residents of Victoria-Haliburton.

In his introductory remarks, meeting chairman Tom James, spoke of the need for people to involve themselves more directly in matters of government. "Democracy faces many problems," he warned, "but one of the worst is apathy, a lack of concern as to what governments are doing in our name."

He drew attention to a large sign on the wall proclaiming the theme: "Come Be Part of Canada's Future. Let Your Voice Be Heard."

Rev. Aruna Alexander from the United Church, was invited to report briefly on the recent conference in India, dealing with the 1981 UN "Declaration on the Elimination of all forms of Intolerance and Discrimination based on Religion or Belief." Participants were challenged to examine the constitutions and religion of their own countries for existing obstacles that could lead to misunderstanding and intolerance.

Donna Quance, wife of MPP Dennis Drainville, explained why her husband had become involved with the native people in Temagami, why he had been arrested, and why he faces a jail term.

Cathy Vainio, former NDP candidate, dealt with ideology. The fundamental aim of the NDP is "the common good", achieved through the parliamentary process. However, this process must be more democratic than the one now in existence. Directly involving all people in the decision — making process would require such innovations as: regular grassroots policy meetings; referendums and questionnaires; more openness in government; freer access to information; the right to dissent without facing arrest or other forms of recrimination; and the right to recall elected officials when they no longer represent the will of the people.

Jane Wild, Drainville's press secretary, dealt with practicalities. "The emphasis of the government is on people; and the top priority is helping people to get through the recession." She emphasized that the Lindsay NDP is there to serve the whole riding, regardless of one's party affiliation. To help people on an individual basis, Wild will be in Cardiff for a whole day this spring; date to be announced. Issues will include unemployment, sickness benefits, housing, etc.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to questions from the audience, covering issues such as the status of Quebec, civil disobedience, waste management, taxation and the Gulf war.

Ed and Billy Pickard made the Valentine Day luncheon at Extencicare a musical event. The Haliburton nursing home hosted guests from Hyland Crest in Minden. Close to 90 people enjoyed the road beef dinner.

COBOCONK NEWS

Sympathy goes out to the family of the late Jim Fielder and the late Bert Emburg who have passed away recently. Both were Coboconk natives and Bert Emburg had a cottage here and lived in Lindsay. Jim Fielder passed away at Bobcaygeon and his sister, Maude White and brother Claire lived here.

I narrowly missed hitting a big deer just south of Wib and Carol Switzer's home, south of Caby on Wednesday evening.

We Somerville residents who have a dog must remember to buy the 1991 dog tags, now available at the Somerville Township Office at $7 a dog. If you do not buy a tag before March 29th, the same tag will cost you $15 after then. Bruce Newman is the Somerville Dog Control By-law Officer.

For Laxton, Digby and Longford Townships dog owners, you should buy your 1991 dog tag before Feb. 28th at $5 for a male or female (spayed) or $6 after that date. Additional dog tag fees are available at township office in Norland. A benefit dance for the Chris Suckling family, who lost everything in a house fire recently, was held in the Coboconk Lions hall on Feb. 16th.

It's about to become a reality! I'm referring to the proposed new Coboconk Public School. The Victoria County Board of Education has purchased the 10-acre of land on the west side of Hwy. 35 just north of Highway 35 and 48 intersection. Construction of the new school should get underway in a few months.

Congratulations and a warm welcome to the new Somerville Fire Chief, Donald Ayers of Omeme, who is replacing retired Chief Morace Jones.

For parents who have youngsters who will be starting kindergarten in Sept. 1991, if your child will be attending Coboconk

Public School, you should register your child on March 27th, in the morning. Burnt River kindergarten registration is on March 20th 1991 in the morning, and for Norland kindergarten registration the date is March 5th 1991, in the morning.

February is Heart month so a Heart Fund canvasser will likely call on you.

We journeyed to the Somerville Centre on Tuesday evening for the Shepherds Pic - Pancake Supper put on by the Anglican Church ladies and enjoyed a good supper.

Margaret Hill, the bed

Best wishes to you "Tootie", hope you can soon be home! Carolyn tells me her daughter, Nancy, phoned from England a few nights ago and Nancy says they really have a lot of snow there and very cold weather.

BAC hosts skating party

W. GUILFORD NEWS

by: ELEANOR COOPER

The Brotherhood of Anglican Churchmen sponsored a skating party at Rotary Beach Park (where a rink is made at the summer tennis courts) on Sunday Feb. 17. Families enjoyed the vigorous exercise for the afternoon, then were joined by others less hardy for a hearty chili supper at St. George's Church. Wayne Cooper cooked the chili of tasty and generous quality and quantity. Others present from West Guilford were the Fawcett family, Earl and I, the Keith Chumbleys and the David Chumbleys. Sixty-four in all participated in the fun and food.

Congratulations to Peter Dawes and Joan Lafore who were married on Saturday at the West Guilford Centre. Reception and dinner followed, and a wedding dance in the evening.

This Sunday Trio Vivant appear at the Legion in Haliburton, the second in our 1990-91 concert series. These musicians present us with expertise on violin, cello and piano.

March 1st is World Day of Prayer. Join us at St. Andrew's at 2 p.m. for "On the Journey Together" for this ecumenical service.
